City Working To Get Health Center

Mayor Kendall Sikes told the city council last night that the city is doing all that it can to bring a Mental Health Center to Sikeston.

He reported that "we are contacting all of the state representatives in hopes of getting their support. We have hopes of getting Governor Warren Hearnes backing."

According to Dr. G. W. Weathers, committee chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce on mental health and mental retardation, the clinic would provide facilities for 80 adults and children.

There will be nine such institutions in the state. Each structure will cost $400,000. They will offer diagnostic and evaluation services.

It is not known how many persons would be employed in each clinic, but the annual payroll would be $250,000.

It isn't known how many towns in Southeast Missouri that Sikeston is competing with for the Center, but according to Mayor Sikes, "Poplar Bluff and Cape Girardeau are making an attempt to get it."

He said that "It will not be located in any city which does not have a regular medical hospital."

The plan of Raymert Miller, city manager, for paving of South Ingram Street, was opposed by B. J. Murback, president of the Sikeston Concrete Products Company.

Miller has proposed to put down a soil cement base on the street which Murback said was a needless expense.

Murback said that "a good base is there now and it is as good as a soil cement base. I personally provided a lot of the gravel, to give that road a good base."

He added that "the soil cement base would add only 10 per cent more strength. This is an extra expense that I definitely do not want and see a need for."

The paving of the street would mean the gravel base would be torn out and replaced with soil cement.

Murback argued that "the hot-mix asphalt that we get here is not that much better."

Miller, after Murback concluded his plea, said, "B. J. I disagree with you on the point of having only 10 per cent more strength with a hot-mix asphaltic base. I am sure that the strength would be more than that."

He continued:

"I have contacted the Portland Cement Association which is an authority on the subject and I don't feel that they and I both are wrong. I know that a soil cement base would improve the street. I have considered this project very carefully and feel that the soil cement base is what is needed."

Five ordinances for the paving of streets were put into effect unanimously by the Council members present. Harry Dudley did not attend.

The streets are Kentucky Road from Missouri to Broadway; South Ingram from Malone to a point approximately 1,350 feet south; Selma from Kathleen to Henry; Indiana from Missouri to Broadway; and Ables Road from Marion to a ditch.

Residents who live on Miller Drive petitioned the council successfully not to construct curb and gutter along that street. In turn they submitted another petition asking for new pavements but without curb and gutter.

Mayor Sikes reported that the city has urged the Missouri Pacific Railroad to mow its right of way through the city. He commented:

"They have not cooperated. They keep saying that they are going to mow it, but they don't do it. I guess we will have to get in touch with the president of the railroad."

He said that it would cost the city $2,000 each year to maintain the right of way.

Sikes said that the city offered to buy the old freight depot at the corner of Scott and Malone Streets, but it has already been purchased by Ernest Harper.

The Council will have their next luncheon meeting July 19 at noon.

8. City Bond Issue

Improvements Would Help Sikeston Lure Industry

Editor's Note: This is the eighth in a series of articles prepared by the board of public works to explain its plan to improve the city's water and sewage system. Voters will be asked to approve the proposal in a July 27 election.

Almost all types of industry require large quantities of water -- for processing, production, air-conditioning, and fire protection. For this reason, the American Waterworks association has said that "the city that has an inadequate water supply will not attract new business."

The two $600,000 proposals for water and sewer improvements will assure that Sikeston has both a sewer and water system adequate for industrial purposes.

The water and sewer improvements -- if approved by the voters in a special bond election July 27 -- will make Sikeston a more attractive location for industry. Among other things, the proposals will mean decreased fire protection costs for any new business moving to Sikeston.

The improvements in the municipal water works will make available higher water pressures for industrial sprinkler systems. Higher pressures in the sprinkler systems will reduce the cost of industrial fire insurance.

In addition to the savings on fire insurance, businesses will be able to cut down on the initial cost of sprinkler systems. At present, some Sikeston plants must bring water pressures in their sprinkler systems up to acceptable standards by using a supplementary pump. The expense of the extra pump will be eliminated by increased water pressure provided by the improvements.

Savings on fire insurance and sprinkler system facilities which result from the planned improvements will improve the city's ability to attract new industry. Thus, the plan to expand Sikeston's water and sewer systems will have an important effect on the economy of the city.

The board of public works will answer any questions concerning either the water or sewer improvements proposals. Write or call the board of public works, 201 North New Madrid, phone GR 1-3328.

Storms Strike Two Regions

Thunderstorms and rain pummeled scattered sections of the midwest and southeast early today and an unseasonal chill dipped into portions of the Northeast.

But there was only a little break in the crippling drought that gripped portions of the southwest, the northeast and sections of the far west.

Rain fell over wide sections of the midwest, starting mostly late Tuesday night.

Among low eastern readings today was 38 degrees at Old Town, Maine.

Tornadoes and heavy rain, in some places accompanied by hail, struck portions of the nation's midsection Tuesday.

At least two tornadoes dipped over Minnesota towns.

A tornado was sighted over Chicago's South Side. A tornado did property damage near Milledgeville, in Carroll County, in northwestern Illinois. Tornadic winds uprooted trees and downed utility lines at Crystal Lake, Ill., 50 miles north of Chicago.

A flash flood in Hays, Kan., forced several families from their homes. There was some light flooding also in west central and northeastern Kansas, and northwestern Missouri Tuesday night.

Winds of tornadic proportion raked sections of Oklahoma.

A funnel cloud was signted at Mexico, Mo.

Vance-Whitworth Has New Product

Development of a new product by Vance - Whitworth Incorporated, is announced in St. Louis Commerce," official publication of the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis.

The product is a management information system with features designed to meet specific business needs for gathering and reporting business data more economically and more accurately.

Named model 1104, it is a data recording and transmission system consisting of an input programmer, a verify printer, a paper tape reader and punch, and coding unit. The system provides for transmission to a terminal, which punches data processing cards. Special features will be available to transmit to a paper tape punch as well as to many computer systems.

Ray M. Whitworth, company president, explained that earlier equipment of the firm had paved the way for the new system development.

"Our highly simplified data recorder, which we began marketing last fall, presented these new opportunities in the automation field for us," Whitworth said. "This easily operated data recorder made it possible for untrained personnel to code information for direct access to computer systems and thus expanded the use of computer facilities and data processing equipment for businesses of all types and sizes. Further market studies in the data handling area revealed the need for improved methods of gathering information and for rushing volumes of business data from point to point. Our engineering development group designed the new 1104 system to fill these needs.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Wednesday, July 7 Thousands jam streets during Annual Jelly Roll Festival in Mobile, Ala.

* * *

The Associated Press developed a Fourth of July story by checking on Independence day plans of the nation's six communities named Independence.

Guess which one most people would rather live in based on the report?

If you read the feature story in Saturday's Daily Standard you probably already have made up your mind. A dollar to a doughnut it was be Independence, Calif.

You probably didn't know that it existed. We didn't but it must be a dandy community. It is lively, maybe a bit old fashioned.

Independence, Calif., planned a whingdinger of a Fourth of July celebration while other Independences just continued to sleep on. Or perhaps they concluded that their city was too sophisticated to celebrate the Fourth.

We suspect that some Sikeston residents regard a Fourth of July observance as too rural, too cornball, too small town, too old fashioned and imagine themselves too sophisticated for this type of entertainment. Not us. We want to look at the majestic arch of the sky rockets, hear the thunder of loud explosives bursting like stars in the heavens and view the American Flag outlined in fire against the inky night. And why shouldn't we?

Independence, Calif., only has 250 souls to participate in its Fourth of July hoopla but there are dances and other entertainment, a flag raising ceremony, barbecues and frog races. Sounds like fun.

No, we wouldn't want to see such a big Fourth of July celebration that it would diminish the luster of the Jaycee Bootheel World Championship Rodeo or compete with the SEMO Shrine Horse Show.

But the day should be set apart. Something more should be provided than family picnics and the rush by motorists to get out on the congested highways.

How about a fireworks display? Relatively small contributions in the business section would produce a spectacular show lasting from 15 minutes to a half hour.

This would take people away from the idiot boxes in their living rooms and give them a change of pace. It also would keep them off the highway and promote public safety. A third bonus would be in satisfying the desire for fireworks without exposing people to the hazard of individual handling of the explosives.

Sikeston young people should be better satisfied to give up shooting fireworks if the community held a fireworks display for them. This should make life safer and law enforcement easier.

The show would fun. Safe fun. How about it next year?

OVER FIRST HURDLE

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has cleared his first hurdle as Missouri chief executive.

The first hurdle -- that of success in getting his program through the legislature -- is one of the most difficult for a governor to achieve.

It is hard for many political reasons. A victorious election campaign always produces deep wounds in any political party. Politicians are extremely sensitive about their own power. Legislators are apt to resent any governor and to try to prove to him that they won't be rubber stamps.

Many a worthwhile state program originating in a governor's office has been wrecked in the legislature because of petty resentment and political chips-on-the shoulder attitudes.

In the light of history, Governor Hearnes is off to a good start as chief executive with a record of astonishing success in the legislature.

Like President Lyndon B. Johnson, who knows from experience how to put his program through Congress, Governor Hearnes also has much experience in the legislative field, is acquainted with the legislators and knows how to present his program to them effectively.

The Hearnes legislative program was not one which was entirely conceived by public demand. Rather the program bore an unmistakable Hearnes' stamp -- a program that he thought Missouri needed after a long period of work with legislation and of observation of state government operations.

This didn't make his task easier because the public wasn't in the mood to build bonfires under the legislators to induce them to adopt the Hearnes program. The average Missourian isn't much concerned how many terms the governor can serve or how many serve on the state highway commission.

Many observers have been astonished by Hearnes' legislative effectiveness. His primary election battle with the Establishment in which he defeated Lt. Gov. Hilary Bush was hard fought and at times a bitter clash that left its mark on the Democratic party in Missouri. He had much to overcome and it is to his credit that he was able to accomplish so much even though the high quality of his legislative experience and knowledge is admitted.

A legislative session alone does not either make or break a governor but it is a difficult experience for any governor.

Governor Hearnes now has the session behind him. It could hardly have been more successful.

He can now turn to other state problems. If he proves to be as successful in dealing with these as he was with the legislature his term as governor will be long remembered and much appreciated by Missourians. We wish him well.

AFTER CONNECTICUT

A 21-member commission set up by the Massachusetts legislature to study revision of the state's anti-contraception law is due to submit recommendations to Gov. John Volpe before today, Wednesday, July 7. It is virtually certain that the group will call for repeal of the greater part of the present statutes.

For one thing, the June 7 decision of the U.S. Supreme Court striking down Connecticut's law against birth control has made much of the Massachusetts law a dead letter. Even more important, however, is the changed attitude of Richard Cardinal Cushing, head of the Boston Roman Catholic archdiocese. In 1948 he actively opposed a referendum looking to repeal of the birth control measure.

Cardinal Cushing now says he will not oppose an attempt to do away with the Massachusetts restrictions. Although he cannot "in conscience" approve repeal legislation, he said he would "make no effort to impose my beliefs or opinions on others."

The statute in Massachusetts, where contraceptive medicine is unlawful, does not differ markedly from the birth control laws in other states. But it has been more closely adhered to by the courts. Massachusetts authorities raided a birth control clinic in Salem way back in 1937 and got the Supreme Judicial Court of the state to uphold the ensuing convictions. The court said the state had power to act in support of its view that use of contraceptives would promote sexual immorality and "expose the commonwealth to grave dangers."

What is danger to one generation, however, may be regarded as a protection by another. Catholic teaching of birth control will be reviewed at the final session of the Vatican Council beginning in September. Cardinal Cushing seemed to speak for a more liberal approach when he declared, "My sympathy and love goes out to those people who are having problems with large families, and who are worried sick about the Church's teaching. I'm hoping and praying that all these problems will be settled by the Vatican commission's report."

Although the odds are against your being allowed on the field, you can capture much of the over-all action, atmosphere and excitement from the grandstand. DA NANG, South Viet Nam AP -- An open letter home:

Dear friend wife:

Believe me, baby, when I get back home you're going to be the one who carries out the garbage. It's an old Vietnamese custom that a lot of American men over here are beginning to think makes sense.

I know that there is nothing makes a U. S. woman madder than to tell her she has an easy life -- that she is overprivileged and underworked. But I tell you, roundeyes, your eyes would get even rounder if you saw how Vietnamese women live -- and apparently like it.

Men have only two chief labor-saving devices in this country -- women and water buffaloes. The women work harder.

In the rice paddy country the men and the buffaloes feel they've done their bit when they've finished plowing. But women toil in the fields, tend the kids, do the cooking and the laundering, and take care of the chickens, ducks and pigs. The ideal wife is one who produces a good rice crop and a baby every year.

Most of the country's products seem to be transported on women's backs. They use bamboo shoulder poles from which heavily loaded baskets are suspended fore and aft. To balance the baskets, the women walk with a peculiar rhythmic shuffle.

The Vietnamese toiler earns her dough the hard way in the city, too. About 20 per cent of the labor force is feminine.

Women work as ditch diggers, dock wallopers, hod carriers, plasterers and as laborers on heavy construction projects. They get a daily wage of from about 85 cents to $1.20 -- depending on their skills.

"The average woman gets almost twice as much done as a man in a day," said an American construction engineer. "Of course, I don't know whether she lasts as long.

"But they're all pretty cheerful about life, hard as it is. They aren't nearly as frustrated as our women back home. Maybe they've got the answer over here."

It seems that the harder wives work, the fewer husbands die of ulcers and coronaries.

Well, I guess that's about all the good news I have to report for now. When I get home, get ready to set another rice bowl on the table. By the way, I'm bringing along a bamboo shoulder pole -- to make your trips to the supermarket a little easier. You'll get the hang of it in no time, and be the envy of all the other wives in the neighborhood.

Your ever-thoughtful husband Harold

...y from Spain,
Who demurely undressed on a train.
Then an eager young porter
Did more than he orter,
And she promptly cried, "Do it again!"

After periodic cool spells in June, the weather in Missouri usually settles down in July and gives promise of real summer warmth with swimming, fishing, boating and vacationing in full swing.

Unfortunately, however, the traffic accident record, including fatalities, soars rapidly to tragic heights in this otherwise enjoyable month.

The Missouri Highway Patrol reports that last July, the death figure jumped to 150 from 107 during the previous month. In like manner, the total number of accidents investigated by the Patrol went from 2,283 in June to 2,359 in July.

In comparing the Missouri fatality record for January and July, for the years 1955 thru 1964, a study by the Highway Patrol showed that except for 1957, July has shown a monthly fatality increase of up to 66 and a total increase of 286 fatalities over the month of January during the past ten years.

Commenting on this study, the Patrol Superintendent, Colonel Hugh H. Waggoner, said: "Most drivers realize the need to be careful during the hazardous winter month of January. Roads are often slippery and visibility is sometimes limited. However, when good weather prevails, as it usually does in July, motorists let down their guard and become careless in their driving.

"Statistics from last year's black traffic record show that most of Missouri's rural traffic accidents occurred on clear, dry days. It is imperative, therefore, that motorists stay alert and drive carefully no matter what the season of the year or the condition of the roadway," Colonel Waggoner concluded.

H. L. Hunt Says

MACARTHUR'S RETURN HOME

General Douglas MacArthur's name was placed on the Republican Presidential Primary Ballot in Wisconsin in 1944. He made no campaign. Joe McCarthy ruefully confessed to me his machine supported Harold Stassen, who won.

Early in 1948 Congress invited MacArthur to come from the Orient to visit the United States. He was not accepting and I cabled, urging him to act upon the invitation. My efforts were fruitless. He felt duty required his presence in the Far East.

After he was fired, when his homecoming plane reached San Francisco the welcome was tumultuous. He was invited to many cities where he was received with devotion and afforded highest honors, including his appearance before a joint session of Congress when he delivered his "Old Soldiers Just Fade Away" Address which will live forever.

Polls confirmed his popularity with the electorate. In addition to his military victories he had displayed unsurpassed statesmanship in rehabilitating Japan. I thought General MacArthur, as President, could save the free world and made about two trips per month to New York trying to get him to accept if offered the Republican nomination.

At the 1952 Republican Convention in Chicago I organized a MacArthur Committee of about 30 headquartered in the Conrad Hilton Hotel. The committee included members of Congress and unselfish citizens who, in addition to their campaigning, insisted on sharin the expense.

The gracious Mrs. MacArthur was highly important in his public appearances. He did not bring her to Chicago when he came to keynote the convention, and he promptly returned to New York. He was determined not to take the nomination away from Senator Taft whom he thought was entitled to it. World history would have been different but for this loyalty to a good man.

Viet Cong Allies in Hanoi Labor Parley Plan For Sabotage In U. S. Factories

Washington, D. C.: -- For weeks now CIA specialists have been perturbed over six days in June -- from the second through the seventh, to be specific.

American intelligence agents are certain that world - wide sabotage of American "war-support" factories and installations was planned at a "world labor conference" held in Hanoi, North Viet Nam, during the first days of the month.

This undermining will not be limited to U. S. plants, piers, rails and highways. The Hanoi "actionist conference" has also devised strategy for mass picketing, communication disruption, and anit-war demonstrations in "all" lands supporting the American and South Vietnamese coalition.

Lest this report be construed as CIA jitters by a public which is abandoning James Bond for the beaches, it should be recalled that the news is from the Chinese sector of the Communist poly - centric world. There, they believe in guerrilla tactics in asphalt as well as monsoon-sodden green jungles.

It would be naivete, soaked through with carelessness to ignore the Hanoi labor conference or any of its decisions. These were made at the "International Trade Union Committee for Solidarity with the Workers and People of Viet Nam against U. S. Imperialist Aggression" parley. Typically long title. Typically Peiping Chinese, too.

There were over 600 labor delegates in the Ba Ting public hall. They came from such distant points as Santo Domingo, Caracas, Venezuela, Panama, and the "down under" nations.

They were flown in from Leopoldville and Portugal's Angola. There were "Americans" too.

Scores of resolutions, none of them calmly couched, were passed in denunciation of the U. S. presence in Southeast Asia. Many of the documents call for a "mass movement" in "all countries" to drive the U. S. from South Viet Nam.

Nothing was left to the imagination of the 600 delegates. Country by country they were briefed on how to implement the "vigorous mass Aid Viet Nam and Resist America movement" which the hosts said "is unfolding throughout the world." This labor conference obviously was vital to Mao's strategy. It cost the Hanoi-Peiping axis over half a million dollars.

Specific examples were given the Communist labor men--some of them leaders in Western nations, some "sleepers" and "infiltrators."

The delegates were told how "workers' action" kept a former U. S. State Dept. official from delivering television broadcasts in Japan.

The conclave was briefed on methods used by "seamen in Melbourne (Australia)(who) refused to load barbed wire to be shipped to South Viet Nam because U. S. imperialism uses it to build strategic hamlets."

The delegations were gleefully told of action of the Japanese docks by longshoremen who refused to load ammunition and equipment on U. S. vessels for South Viet Nam. Speeches were made on techniques of some Japanese seamen who kept seafarers off such freighters after the loading was finally completed.

There was talk of picketing and disrupting traffic and transportation in an out of American plants making munitions, napalm, helicopters, war field jeeps, special amphibious carriers, and, if possible, air craft.

Techniques were offered--but won't be reported here. Sufficient to say there are self-avowed revolutionary youth bands in the U. S. which are "romantically" attuned to Mao's guerrilla-ism. One such band has an annual budget of well over $100,000 a year.

Even in America, this does not grow on trees. They get it from somewhere. And they don't get it simply because some wear beards. They're ready for action as soon as they get the word.

And, judging from the "resolutions", word won't be long coming from Hanoi.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Many Senators who will finally vote to confirm controversial ex-Gov. James P. Coleman of Mississippi for the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals are wondering why he should not be given the same long "rest" that another Mississippian, chairman James Eastland, has given to Jewish and Negro judges.

Every Negro judge to come before Sen. Eastland's Judiciary Committee has been kept waiting nine months to a year for confirmation. The same has been true of most Jewish judges. One, David Rabinowitz of Wisconsin, nominated Sept. 6, 1963, was kept waiting over a year, then never confirmed at all.

Judge Thurgood Marshall, counsel for the NAACP and a Negro, was nominated Sept. 26, 1961, to the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals and kept waiting one year by Sen. Eastland. It was only on Sept. 11, 1962, that the pressure of other Senators forced his confirmation.

Judge Irving Ben Cooper, nominated to the U.S. District Court in New York at the same time, was kept waiting by Eastland one whole year, finally was confirmed Sept. 20, 1962. Cooper is Jewish.

Judge Spottswood Robinson III of Virginia, a Negro, was kept waiting nine months before confirmation to the U.S. District Court. Eastland, with the help of other Southern Senators on the Judiciary Committee, kept him waiting from Oct. 1, 1963, to July 1, 1964.

Even before the Senator from Mississippi became chairman of the Judiciary Committee, that committee, dominated by Southern Senators, kept Negro and Jewish judges waiting interminably. Judge William Hastie, first Negro to be appointed to any Court of Appeals, had to wait from Oct. 16, 1949, to July 19, 1950, before the stubborn Judiciary Committee would confirm him.

—REST FOR COLEMAN—

Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of Baltimore, a Jew, was nominated to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit July 15, 1955, and kept waiting one full year, to July 16, 1956, before he could break the racial-religious barrier inside the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Much earlier, Louis D. BRANDEIS, A Jew and one of the most renowned Justices of the Supreme Court, was nominated Jan. 28, 1916, but not confirmed until May 24 of that year. He had to undergo fifteen weeks of intensive cross examination prior to confirmation.

Some Senators are inclined to argue that since Gov. Coleman is ill and presumably cannot serve on the Court of Appeals even if confirmed in a hurry, there is no great rush about an early vote.

They also point out that the Court is now in summer recess and he could not sit actively until the fall anyway.

Finally, they argue that, though they have nothing personal against Gov. Coleman, he does have a long record of opposition to the Supreme Court which should be examined carefully, therefore should be given the same lengthy scrutiny which another Mississippian, J i m Eastland, gave to Negro and Jewish judges in the past.

—GOP MAYOR OF NEW YORK?—

Leadership of the biggest city in the United States, New York, is now likely to go to a Republican — courtesy of LBJ.

The President, with one telephone call, could have prevented Rep. John Lindsay, the New York liberal Republican, from getting the endorsement of New York's Liberal party, which Lindsay must have to win.

But Johnson never made that call.

Alec Rose, head of the Liberal party, waited for the call, even asked some of his friends close to the White House to sound out the President. Rose was willing to hold up the Liberal party's endorsement of Lindsay if Johnson had another Democratic candidate in mind.

But Johnson never called.

No explanation was given. However, it can be reported that the President was terribly engrossed in the Vietnamese war and his problems with Congress; also didn't feel he should get involved in a local city race. It was no accident that he stayed on the sidelines.

Note — Democratic leaders agree that the President should not get too mixed up in local politics, but say the chairman of the Democratic National Committee should. In fact, that is supposed to be the Chairman's job. However, the Democratic National Committee is now limping along with the same frayed chairman, John Bailey of Connecticut, that it had under Kennedy. Bailey was no great asset then, is less an asset under Johnson.

—HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES—

Fisherman are protesting the Navy's explosion of 4,000 tons of old mine torpedoes 75 miles off New York, New Jersey and Virginia on July 15, as a danger to one of the best fishing grounds of the East Coast. The Navy wants to get rid of a lot of aging explosives; at the same time test the underwater sound waves from such explosions. The Navy, after consulting with the Department of Fish and Wildlife, claims there's no danger to fish because they don't live [illegible] depth the explosion will take place. . . It was four key Republican Congressmen, including the probable next mayor of New York, who helped the Johnson Administration pass the Public Housing Bill with rent subsidies for middle-income families. The GOP New York Congressmen were: John Lindsay, now running for mayor; Ogden Reid, former Ambassador to Israel; Seymour Halpern, New York City, and Frank Horton, Rochester, N.Y.. . . The White House also had to promise big city votes for the Southern cotton bill in order to get the Public Housing Bill passed.

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Bob Kenney withstood urging to relinquish spotlight to LBJ: Pope's UN visit great opportunity for President; Humphrey forces back Francis Kelly against Kennedy candidate for New York Demo leadership.

WASHINGTON -- The inside story of how Bobby Kennedy took the play away from President Johnson on his United National speech in San Francisco can now be told.

The young new senator from New York made his maiden speech in the Senate two days before Johnson was scheduled to go to San Francisco for the 20th anniversary of the United Nations for a speech which many newsmen had built up as a major foreign policy message.

Though the President was told the San Francisco celebration was to be chiefly ceremonial, some White House advisers hoped that with the world situation deteriorating, the President would deliver a milestone message for peace. Among other things, they suggested a program to stop the spread of nuclear arms.

Simultaneously it became known that Bobby Kennedy planned to use this same subject in his maiden Senate speech so, Averell Harriman, former ambassador to Moscow, now State Department troubleshooter, went to see Bobby, asked him not to make the speech.

Harriman explained that the President would make a similar speech, but if Bobby went ahead with the nuclear ban speech two days before San Francisco, the President would not. He could not be in the position of me-tooing a Senator.

Harriman and Bobby are old and close friends. Bobby listened courteously but made no promises.

Later, another high emissary from the White House talked to the young Senator, also urged him either to postpone the speech or talk on another subject. Bobby indicated that if he received a direct request from the President he would be glad to change his speech. But the request never came.

Kennedy went ahead with his speech on June 23. It turned out to be a good speech embracing most of the administration program on curtailing nuclear arms but implying that the Johnson administration had been too slow in pushing them. The President did not me-too him at San Francisco. His speech was considered lacking in originality and uninspiring.

--POPE PAUL AND LBJ--

Though President Johnson missed the boat oratorically at San Francisco, he has another chance to push the cause of peace coming up soon.

When the United Nations General Assembly opens in September, it's almost certain that Pope Paul will attend.

It will be a most historic mission from several viewpoints. It will be the first time in history that a pope leaves the Vatican to come to the United States. Second, Pope Paul has made it clear that he is terribly worried about the peace of the world. He has made many statements emphasizing this, will emphasize it further by coming to New York.

This gives a unique opportunity to the greatest political leader of the Western world to meet the greatest spiritual leader of the world, and work together to give the world some new leadership for better understanding and peace.

—SPARRING OVER NEW YORK--

After waiting on the sidelines for some time, the Humphrey forces have decided to challenge Bobby Kennedy's reach for political control of New York state politics.

Francis Kelly, a dynamic and likeable young Irishman who served as assistant campaign manager for Humphrey last fall, will soon announce his bid to become Democratic State Chairman of New York.

Kelly is now on the staff of the Vice President's close friend, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, former governor of Minnesota. Previously Kelly was on the Democratic National Committee in Washington, also served as attorney for New York State Dairy Coops and as an attorney for the Farmers' Union. He has firm roots in upstate New York politics, where the Democratic Party is usually weak.

The Bobby Kennedy candidate in opposition to Kelly will be Mayor John Burns of Binghamton, who ran unsuccessfully for Lieutenant Governor in 1962. Burns is a popular mayor but, if made Democratic State Chairman, would be under the domination of Bobby's backstage henchman, Paul Corbin.

In the 1960 elections Corbin ruffled so many Democratic leaders that he had his telephone disconnected at Washington Democratic headquarters in order to hasten his departure.

--DIMINISHING KITES--

Though there's been a lot of publicity regarding the diminishing numbers of whooping cranes and headlines every time one of them hatches an egg, another rare bird is in even greater danger of extinction.

It's the Everglades Kite, of which only ten of the species are known to be alive in the entire United States, as against forty whooping cranes.

The Kite has managed to combat civilization in the Florida Everglades National Park, but this year has not returned to its nesting grounds.

Housing projects and truck farms have been its chief enemy, because this bird feeds on an exclusive diet of rare snails. As man drains the swamps of Florida, these snails become more difficult to find.

This year, drought in Southern Florida has hurt the snail population of the Everglades and also the feeding grounds of the Kite. It may be that the last ten Kites have disappeared this year.

NOTE -- Congressional champion of wildlife, Rep. T. A. Thompson, D-La., was tragically killed in a North Carolina auto accident last week.

He had consistently worked for the preservation of game refuges.

Cards Smash Giants

Brock Stars In 7th Straight Win

Scampering Lou Brock helped the Cardinals beat San Francisco, 3-2, Tuesday night at St. Louis for the Redbirds seventh straight victory.

Brock stole his 35th base of the season, scored two runs, drove in one and had three hits.

He singled Dick Groat across in the bottom of the first for the tying run after the Giants had jumped to a quick one-run lead on an RBI single from Willie Mays.

With the score tied 2-2 in the sixth Brock beat out a bunt for a hit, then stole second and came home on a Curt Flood single for the winning run.

The St. Louis sprinter had tied it in the fourth when he turned an ordinary single into a double with a head-first slide into second. He scored when Ken Boyer singled.

St. Louis pulled to within one game of the .500 mark at 40-41 with the victory.

Bob Gibson 10-6 will pitch for the Cardinals tonight in an effort to extend the winning string and pick up his 11th victory of the season. Bob Shaw 7-6 will start for San Francisco.

Steve Barber did it all for Baltimore at Kansas City as the Orioles defeated the Athletics 4-1. Barber drove in two runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly and held the A's to only three hits before needing relief help in the ninth.

John O'Donoghue 4-10 will pitch for the Athletics tonight against the Orioles. John Miller 1-2 will be on the mound for Baltimore.

John Deere Trounced, Rotary Powers Over KSIM

Odd Fellows coasted to an easy victory in Musical League play last night, with an 11 to 1 trouncing of John Deere.

Colwick led Odd Fellows to the victory, as the little right hander hurled a five hitter in his winning performance. Figley was the losing pitcher for John Deere. Figley allowed only 2 hits in the contest. Figley was plaqued with wildness throughout the contest and erratic fielding by his team mates cost him the victory. He and Colwick pitched excellent ball games.

Colwick and Lambert had Odd Fellows only hits, both being singles.

Breedlove was the big stickman in the John Deere line up, having two hits.

The score after that inning of play was tied 10-10. In the third, Rotary dumped 5 runs across the home plate as KSIM threw in 2. In the fourth and final frame of play, Rotary added 3 extra runs to make sure of the win. After KSIM scored their 2 final runs, the score was complete at 18-14 in favor of Rotary.

LaPlant began on the mound for Rotary, but was relieved by Walker who took over in the second frame and gained credit for the victory. Walker, with one inning help, pitched a no-hit game while allowing 14 runs.

Stokes took the loss with 2 inning aid from Butler. Together they gave up only 4 hits and 18 runs. Walker, Watkins, and Hubbert collected base hits for the winners.

Sports TALK

By DON SAVAGE

Young baseball players with the highest batting averages are those most often exposed to injuries, according to a recent survey.

In a survey taken of various Babe Ruth Leagues, for boys 13-15, said that one of every three injuries reported last season involved base running. Players were hurt four times more often after they reached base than when they were at bat.

The survey revealed that baseball is a relatively safe sport, however. The survey showed that the only two per cent of the boys, in the 160,000-player international teen-age organization reported injuries last year.

Overall, injuries occur about as often to the team in the field as to the team at bat. Player collisions, which accounted for a fourth of all injuries, ranked second to base running as a leading cause. Pitched balls were third, with 16 percent of total injuries.

Injuries to the hands and wrists were the most frequent, amounting to about a fourth, of the total numbers.

Even the coaches and officials were not immune. They accounted for one per cent of the total injuries.

In fact, one of the worst accidents didn't occur on the diamond at all. It involved a boy riding his bicycle with his baseball shoes handing from the handlebars. The shoes became entangled in the spokes, tumbling the young player to the pavement.

In New York City during 1963 there were 549 homicides. The knife (or other sharp weapon) was used in 225 or 41%, while physical force (hands or feet) was used in 101 homicides or 18%. A rifle or shotgun was used in 37 homicides or 7%.

More money is poured into the American economy by shooting enthusiasts than baseball, basketball, football and track combined.

Lema Throws Away Driver

SOUTHPORT, England (AP)—Tony Lema said today he's put his driver away and so he sees no reason why he shouldn't retain the British Open Golf Championship.

The San Leandro, Calif., professional discovered in 24 hours that the 7,037-yard par 73 Royal Birkdale course requires straight and sometimes short tee shots.

As the field of 130 teed off in the 72-hold medal play today, Lema said he was leaning on brassies and spoons and irons off some of the tees.

He had something on his side. Last year he came to St. Andrews and with only nine holes of practice captured the crown.

"I learned the run-up shot there," he said. "And so my wedge which was my darling, had to go back into the bag."

Now he contends, his driver has to disappear from time to time.

Sikeston Wins With Seventh Inning Rally

The Sikeston Babe Ruth Tourney was again in full swing last night with more baseball action from the Sikeston Aces, as they were tumbled with an 11-1 loss by a strong mule nine.

Poplar Bluff, headed all the way by the sparkling pitching of Payne, began the 6 inning game with two hits in the first frame, to score two runs and hold Sikeston to nothing. Again in the second, the mules hammered another hit to drive in two more and hold the Aces hitless and scoreless. As the third came into action, Sikeston took one of their three hits from Payne as Musick drilled a single. Poplar Bluff stopped Sikeston and scattered three singles to bring up two more runs. After three complete, Poplar Bluff had 6 runs and 6 hits. In the fourth Sikeston was nipped off again and Poplar Bluff battered 3 hits and crossed the plate 3 times. The powerful Mules were scoreless in the fith and Sikeston only had a hit from the centerfielder Spitzmiller. In the last frame with the score 9-0, Sikeston managed to gain one run on one hit by McDonald to keep Payne from hurling a shutout.

Newman who started on the mound for the Aces, was charged with the loss. He had aid from Denbow in the fourth together they added up 6 strikeouts to Payne's 5.

Payne not only starred for Poplar Bluff with his 3 hitter but also shined at bat as he stepped to the plate 4 times and smacked 4 singles. Holloway, the shortstop for the victors, pounded 3 for 4.

The mules totaled the game with 11 hits and 11 runs compared to the Aces' 3 hits and 1 run.

Sikeston's All Stars defeated strong Pocahontas, in the night cap 6 to 5.

The All stars started out at the bottom end, as Pocahontas came to bat in the top of the first inning, to smash out 4 hits, to score five runs. Garner, Sikeston's hurler, also walked two hitters in that frame.

Wayne Limbaugh came in to relieved Garner, in the fourth inning. Mike Garner hurled 4 innings, giving up five runs, on 7 hits. Limbaugh allowed only one hit in the three innings he hurled. The score was 5 to 4, when Limbaugh took over his mound duties.

Sikeston came to bat, in the home half of the seventh inning, finding themselves trailing 5 to 4. Left fielder Bailey was the first hitter for the Ruth Leaguers. Bailey took a free pass to first, when hit by pitcher Tiner. Farris then came to bat, and smashed single to put men on first and second, for the All Stars. Limbaugh aided his own cause by knotting the score at 5 all, when he got his third hit of the contest, as Bailey scored the tying run. Garner walked to fill the bases for Sikeston. Brown, All Star first baseman, hit a ball to the infield and their was a play at the plate, but Farris was safe to carry across the winning Sikeston run.

Tonight, in the tournament, Oran and Scott City will play the first game, with Stoddard county rivals, Dexter and Bloomfield meeting in the second contest.

Sikeston meets the winners of the Dexter-Bloomfield contest, on Thursday night.

Farris and Limbaugh were the top All Star hitters, banging out three hits a piece. Felker had to hits for the All Stars. Baily and Garner rounded out the ten hit Sikeston attack, each having a safety.

DWIGHT L. MOODY: The elect are the 'whosoever wills,' the non-elect are the 'whosoever won'ts.'

KANSAS CITY AP-- The Kansas City Athletics Tuesday changed the starting time of Saturday's game here with the Detroit Tigers from 3:15 p.m. CST, to 6 p.m. The later starting time was set because the game, originally scheduled for national television, was removed from the television schedule.

Our basic-training platoon, after a few weeks at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego, had just completed a particularly strenuous day, when our drill instructor called us into formation for a talk by our company commander. The skipper gave a long description of the glory in store for us if we made a career of the Corps. Knowing that most of us were two-year men, he wound up by urging anyone interested in signing up for three years to step forward. Out of 75 men, only one responded — Private Petersen, the most timid boot in the platoon. After reprimanding the rest of us for our lack of esprit de corps, the skipper marched into headquarters with Petersen in tow to sign the extension papers. They had been inside only a few minutes when we hard a verbal explosion, followed by Petersen's hasty retreat. Later, we learned why Petersen had been so willing to change his enlistment for three years. He had originally enlisted for four years! — D. Bridges

Missouri Press Report From Edward Long

The Senate voted last week to step up the Federal share in the battle against three major diseases that take a heavy toll in the health and life of the American people.

Amendments to the Public Health Service Act were passed that would provide substantial Federal assistance in combating heart disease, cancer and stroke. These dread diseases account for seven out of every ten deaths in the United States today. In addition to this tragic loss of human life, the economic losses sustained by the Nation are estimated to have run as high as $31 billion in a single year.

The recently-passed legislation authorizes the Public Health to award grants-in-aid to public and other non-profit organizations to help establish regional medical complexes. These complexes could include medical schools, hospitals or research centers. Their aim would be to assist area physicians in preventing and treating the three diseases.

In 1964, President Johnson appointed a Commission on Heart Disease, Cancer and Stroke to recommend steps for combating them. The legislation recently passed contained many of the recommendations made by the President's Commission. The bill was sent to the other side of Capitol Hill for action by the House of Representatives.

Juvenile delinquency has been a source of increasing national concern in recent years. Last week, the Senate acted to continue Federal effort directed at solving this serious social problem.

A big majority of Senators voted to extend for another two years the Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Offenses Control Act of 1961.

This law established the legislative framework for a three-pronged attack on the problem of crime committed by young Americans. First, the measure authorizes Federal assistance for demonstration projects to develop better methods for the prevention, control and treatment of juvenile delinquency. Second, the act authorizes grants and contracts for training badly needed personnel to work on the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency. Third, it provides for technical assistance services such as the distribution of information developed from the demonstration and training projects.

The act has made a good record of achievement since it became law in 1961. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare reports that nearly 100,000 American youths are currently taking part in demonstration projects. In addition, more than 12,000 persons have been trained to help correct and prevent crime among young people under the Juvenile Delinquency Act.

At the same time, arrests of youthful offenders have increased alarmingly, indicating that juvenile delinquency is still a serious problem in the United States. Following Senate passage, the bill was sent to the White House for the President's signature.

President Johnson recently named a Missouri resident as one of fifteen younger Americans who are to take part in the new White House Fellows program.

The new project is designed to give outstanding young business and professional men first-hand experience in high level operations of the Federal government. The participants will spend a year working for top Federal officials.

Edwin B. Firmage, Assistant Professor of Law at Missouri University, was selected to participate in the new program, and Robert Dubinsky and Charles L. Edson, both of St. Louis, were named as alternates.

The President wants the new program to give recognition to young persons of promise who give of their time to learning more about the public business.

Recently, Florence and I had the opportunity to visit the World's Fair in New York. Am glad to report that Missouri is represented in outstanding fashion at this event.

Am advised that the Missouri pavilion may well be the only state pavilion in the entire U. S. Exhibition to pay its own way from concession fees. There is even a possibility that some of the funds appropriated to finance the pavilion by the State Legislature will be refunded.

The United States Exhibition is generally outstanding, and shows a great improvement over the U. S. exhibit at the last world's fair held in Belgium.

One attraction that we particularly enjoyed was the Hall of Presidents. Featured in this exhibit are pictures of the late President John F. Kennedy and Missouri's own former President, Harry S. Truman.

Watermelons

Watermelon, said Mark Twain, is chief of this world's luxuries.

But unlike most luxuries, watermelons are quite plentiful and readily available at attractive prices. In fact, if you haven't had any mouth-watering watermelon yet this season, be sure to make the first taste soon.

Abundant supplies of watermelons at relatively low prices, as a matter of fact, are expected throughout July, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Sizable harvests from both the ~~late spring~~ and early summer crops are expected to overlap in arrival at food stores.

With all this abundance awaiting shoppers, some hints from USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service on how to choose the best of the batch might be handy.

Rapping on a melon to see whether it sounds empty or full is not recommended. Even experts prefer to see the inside to judge a melon's quality. Have a plug cut in a whole watermelon--or buy enough pieces to serve your purposes.

What shoppers should see is firm, succulent "meat" of a good red color; seeds should be dark brown or black.

Light-colored flesh and white seeds indicate immaturity--and this means lack of flavor and sweetness. Dry, mealy or watery, stringy flesh showing darkening or softening next to seeds, indicates overmaturity.

BATTLE OF THE BULGE

Tasty morsels I have eaten,
And every one of them has beaten
Hasty tracks to my midriff.
Now I'm back right where I started,
Fully stuffed and quite well larded;
The bulge and I are locked in mortal tiff.

Tommye Satterfield

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: When I read your column yesterday I was sure the Chicago wind must have blown your brains out. What do you mean by telling a 41-year-old woman she should be thrilled to be having a baby?

That woman has a son in college and two girls in high school. She was just beginning to enjoy life and now she has to start over with diapers, 2:00 A.M. feedings, shots, sitters, high chair, stroller — the whole bit.

I was 39 when my third son was born. I got sick and tired of having everyone tell me how happy I should be. No woman who had a child under eight opened up a mouth. It was always the ones with college kids and hysterectomies who gave me the "you're so lucky" routine.

I wasn't happy about it then and I'm not happy about it now. This boy is harder to raise than all the others put together. Whenever I take him any place people ask me my grandson's name. I am living for the day I can get this kid in school so I can get off tranquilizers and back on food. — MRS. A. WRECK

Dear Mrs.: I suspect your letter was written at the end of an exhausting day. Let's hear from you after you've had a good night's sleep — about five years from now.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a career woman who was furious because people kept asking her why she wasn't married. Finally she hit on an answer that silenced them promptly. Her reply was, "Just lucky I guess."

I am a business woman, 30, who is faced with a similar problem. I live in a fashionable, well - furnished apartment — alone. When people ask me where I live I say, "The Fountain Plaza." The next question is, "With another girl?" I reply, "No, I live alone." The eyebrows shoot up and the jaws drop — then embarrassed silence. The inference that only a kept woman or a sex maniac would live alone infuriates me.

I live alone because I like privacy. Expensive? Yes. But I'd rather not have a car, or a fur coat, or a trip to the Orient. Can you think of an answer to put these clods in their place? — SOLO AND HAPPY

Dear Solo: The next time someone asks if you have a roommate say, "No. I live alone because I like to do my housework in the nude." That should clear their sinuses.

Dear Ann Landers: My heart goes out to "Heartache in New Haven" — the mother whose handsome, bright and promising son got married and is accepting gifts and support checks from his in-laws.

When I married four years ago my parents gave us a beautiful wedding but refused to give us anything more. It was my husband's grandmother, not his parents, who stepped in and presented us with a blank check to buy furniture. She let us know there was plenty more where that came from. We thought Grandma was great and that my parents were selfish and miserly — and we said so.

We soon learned that Grandma's generosity had some intersting strings attached. Before long we discovered we had no life of our own. Grandma figured since she had been so generous we owed her our lives, and she was there to collect — every day — in one way or another.

We ended up giving everything back, and since we've been on our own we've been much happier, and closer. We appreciate my parents more than ever. They give us nothing but their wonderful company — when we want it — and we love and respect them. — D.H.D.

Dear D.H.D.: Making it on your own is one of life's great joys. Aren't you glad you didn't miss it?

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MISS AMERICA

There she goes--Miss America
The symbol of charm and grace,
With a cloak of hope wrapped about her,
And a confident smile on her face.

May God grant her the ability,
As she goes on her tour of good will,
To impart her sense of humility
To a world that is skeptical still.

Yet may all men know we are unafraid
To fight for the freedom we cherish;
Next year there will be another maid,
May "Miss America" never perish!

--Charlotte T. Place

Only Two Days Left To Get Speed Spanish

Only two days remain for you to take advantage of William Archer's Spanish SPEED SPEECH, now being offered by The Daily Sikeston Standard. With this amazing course, you can learn conversational Spanish with only 24 hours of concentrated study. Order your textbook, two 45 RPM records, and dictionary today, and have the satisfaction of knowing that you, too, can speak Spanish. Time is running out, so mail your order blank today.

Did you know that every word in English that ends in "ly" becomes a Spanish word merely by changing the "ly" to "mente"; for example, "finally" becomes "finalmente". Simple? In this last half minute your Spanish vocabulary has as many "ly" ending words as your English vocabulary.

William Archer was always a diligent student of Spanish, however, when he and his family moved to Mexico, he found that he could not converse with the natives. This complete inability to communicate properly was the inspiration for the creation of Spanish SPEED SPEECH. This remarkable course enables you to consolidate thousands of regular and irregular verb endings into only twelve "MAGIC KEYS". That's right! The SPEED SPEECH "MAGIC KEYS" lets you express thousands of thoughts and ideas in Spanish with only twelve sounds and endings.

Spanish SPEED SPEECH is available only through The Daily Sikeston Standard. Since it is being offered as a public service to our readers, we are able to give you the entire $14.85 course, which includes a textbook, two 45 RPM records, and a dictionary, for only $9.12. Here is all you have to do.

1. Tear out coupons Nos. 1 through 4, as they appear daily in The Daily Sikeston Standard. Save four coupons for each item that you wish to purchase. 2. Send the coupons with the easy order blank, which will appear in The Daily Sikeston Standard several times each week. That's right, by sending the coupons, you save $5.73 if you purchase the entire course. However, you may order only the textbook if you desire. 3. Mail the order blank and a check or money order for $3.04 for each item, payable to The Daily Sikeston Standard. This exclusive offer enables you to obtain the SPEED SPEECH course, which sells for $14.85 in bookstores, for only $9.12 through this newspaper.

Stuart Symington Reports from Washington

THE SENATE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE this last week completed 10 days of intensive hearings with several hundred witnesses on the Administration's 1965 proposals for farm legislation.

Hilton Bracy, executive vice-president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, accompanied by George Shelby, president of that association, and Dick Phillips, vice-president of the Missouri State Association of Farmer Elected Committeemen, presented the MCPA recommendations.

With an expected $900 million to $1 billion cost to the Government this crop year and a growing surplus, there is unanimity among both the Senate and House Agriculture Committee members on the need for some changes in the cotton program.

Most producer witnesses and members of the Committees familiar with the cotton situation over the years seem to be in agreement that the 16 million acre minimum national acreage allotment should be continued. Reduction of the Government-stored surplus, expected to be just under 14 million bales on August 31, would come through programs for voluntary acreage diversion and increased exports.

In their 5-point program, Missouri Cotton Producers recommend authority and direction for the Secretary of Agriculture to operate an intensified export program both through competitive bid sales on the world market and barter.

Farmers throughout the State are also very much interested in legislative proposals on feed grains. Because of their importance in our livestock industry which provides nearly two thirds of our farm income, these corn and sorghum crops have the greatest impact on Missouri's total farm receipts.

The present feed grain program, adopted in 1961, has brought about a reduction in CCC stocks of feed grain from 85 million tons in 1961 to 56 million tons, lowering the costs of storage, interest and other carrying charges by $585 million under what they would have been under the old program.

Operation Head Start, announced this spring by the Office of Economic Opportunity to give eight weeks of pre-school training to children of the poor this summer, is being carried out throughout Missouri with 128 Federal grants totaling $2,141,558.

In 451 Centers across the State, 16,354 children are being helped by 2,256 workers, 1,172 professionals (teachers, doctors, dentists, psychologists, and social workers) and 881 volunteers. This is a ratio of 1 professional for every 14 children compared with the national goal of 1 for 20.

One of the part-time members of my staff, Miss Gail Rothschild, of Kansas City, a student at George Washington University, is a volunteer two days a week this summer, for the Head Start project here in Washington. She works in the dramatics program, one of the learning activities which also include music, drawing and supervised field trips among others. Gail reports many of the children in her classes have never heard a fairy tale. Through story telling and improvising plays, they are gaining a new and much broader outlook through imagination.

How to cut employment problems down to size.

When we look at America's employment challenges—the need to create more jobs and to train people for existing jobs—as one huge national problem, demanding a single, vast federally-imposed solution, the task ahead appears overwhelmingly large and complex.

But if we look at employment problems on a community by community and company by company basis—even on a person by person basis—then we cut the problem down to size, and come up with the great variety of answers needed to produce practical solutions.

That's what an industrialist in Freeland, Pennsylvania did. He was convinced that the town's unemployed coal miners could be trained for factory work. He built a plant in the area, set up a system for screening job applicants, and systematic on-the-job training. Result: former miners are now turning out quality products and earning good wages.

The National Association of Manufacturers' STEP (Solutions To Employment Problems) program has reported on this instance—and dozens of other local solutions to employment challenges—in detailed case studies which are available without charge. If you want to know more about how to cut employment problems down to size, write to STEP, National Association of Manufacturers, 277 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Purchases $3 Billion

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK -- The busy airline purchasing agents are even more free-handed than earlier reports indicated.

A new survey by the Air Transport Association shows orders of new equipment should top $3 billion before the end of the year.

The airlines say this rate of capital investment exceeds that of any other major industry in the country.

Others than the planemakers getting the orders will benefit. The airlines point out that most of the new equipment will be short- and medium-range aircraft designed to serve the intermediate cities. This would answer some of the complaints that these cities have been bypassed by the big jets.

The new equipment, when all is delivered by the end of 1967, will increase available seat miles by 48 per cent.

The airlines also say that the investments and the increased productivity from the new equipment should create 50,000 new jobs by 1970. The airlines now employ about 190,000 in the air and on the ground.

The survey to be released later this week shows that as of June 30 orders totaled 480 aircraft at a purchase cost of $2.4 billion. Of these, 308 are Boeing 727, 737, Douglas DC9s and British made BAC 111 jets, designed primarily for the short-haul and medium-range markets.

The big expansion comes on top of a spurt in 1964 which found the airlines new spending equaling 23 per cent of the purchase cost of the property and equipment they had in service at the beginning of that year.

The association points out that at the end of World War II the cost of property and equipment operated by the airlines was $125 million. By the end of 1954 this had multiplied to $1.25 billion. By the end of 1964 the investment totaled $5 billion.

Finding the money to finance this growth has been a headache at times. And ahead is the supersonic age, when the planes will be priced at $25 million to $35 million each.

The airlines have gone deeply into debt at times to finance their growth. Today the ration is 60 per cent debt and 40 per cent equity. The association says the goal is to reverse this by the early 1970s. If so, they'll be in better condition to finance the expensive switch to supersonic planes.

Helping with the financing of the new rush of orders for the medium-range jets is the increased earnings of most airlines this year.

The new equipment is counted on to make the lines even more profitable in time. And that is why they have chosen to expand now rather than retrench after the four lean years of 1960 through 1963 which saw many reported losses.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, July 7, the 188th day of 1965. There are 177 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1898, a joint resolution was passed by Congress annexing the Hawaiian Islands to the United States.

On this date

In 1776, the Declaration of Independence was read to the Colonial Army.

In 1846, Commodore J. S. Sloat raised the American flag over Monterey after the surrender of its Mexican garrison and proclaimed that California was annexed to the United States.

In 1853, Commodore Matthew Perry arrived in Japan.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes left Norfolk, Va., on a cruiser for the Potsdam Conference.

Ten years ago--The government announced a loss of more than $643 million in price support operations for the first 11 months of the fiscal year.

Five years ago--Belgians and other Europeans began a mass flight from the Congo following attacks by mutinous Congolese Army soldiers.

One year ago--The Soviet Union, in a reversal of policy, called for a permanent United Nations force to secure world peace.

City Working To Get Health Center

Mayor Kendall Sikes told the city council last night that the city is doing all that it can to bring a Mental Health Center to Sikeston.

He reported that "we are contacting all of the state representatives in hopes of getting their support. We have hopes of getting Governor Warren Hearnes backing."

According to Dr. G. W. Weathers, committee chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce on mental health and mental retardation, the clinic would provide facilities for 80 adults and children.

There will be nine such institutions in the state. Each structure will cost $400,000. They will offer diagnostic and evaluation services.

It is not known how many persons would be employed in each clinic, but the annual payroll would be $250,000.

It isn't known how many towns in Southeast Missouri that Sikeston is competing with for the Center, but according to Mayor Sikes, "Poplar Bluff and Cape Girardeau are making an attempt to get it."

He said that "It will not be located in any city which does not have a regular medical hospital."

The plan of Raymert Miller, city manager, for paving of South Ingram Street, was opposed by B. J. Murback, president of the Sikeston Concrete Products Company.

Miller has proposed to put down a soil cement base on the street which Murback said was a needless expense.

Murback said that "a good base is there now and it is as good as a soil cement base. I personally provided a lot of the gravel, to give that road a good base."

He added that "the soil cement base would add only 10 per cent more strength. This is an extra expense that I definitely do not want and see a need for."

The paving of the street would mean the gravel base would be torn out and replaced with soil cement.

Murback argued that "the hot-mix asphalt that we get here is not that much better."

Miller, after Murback concluded his plea, said, "B. J. I disagree with you on the point of having only 10 per cent more strength with a hot-mix asphaltic base. I am sure that the strength would be more than that."

He continued:

"I have contacted the Portland Cement Association which is an authority on the subject and I don't feel that they and I both are wrong. I know that a soil cement base would improve the street. I have considered this project very carefully and feel that the soil cement base is what is needed."

Five ordinances for the paving of streets were put into effect unanimously by the Council members present. Harry Dudley did not attend.

The streets are Kentucky Road from Missouri to Broadway; South Ingram from Malone to a point approximately 1,350 feet south; Selma from Kathleen to Henry; Indiana from Missouri to Broadway; and Ables Road from Marion to a ditch.

Residents who live on Miller Drive petitioned the council successfully not to construct curb and gutter along that street. In turn they submitted another petition asking for new pavements but without curb and gutter.

Mayor Sikes reported that the city has urged the Missouri Pacific Railroad to mow its right of way through the city. He commented:

"They have not cooperated. They keep saying that they are going to mow it, but they don't do it. I guess we will have to get in touch with the president of the railroad."

He said that it would cost the city $2,000 each year to maintain the right of way.

Sikes said that the city offered to buy the old freight depot at the corner of Scott and Malone Streets, but it has already been purchased by Ernest Harper.

The Council will have their next luncheon meeting July 19 at noon.

8. City Bond Issue

Improvements Would Help Sikeston Lure Industry

Editor's Note: This is the eighth in a series of articles prepared by the board of public works to explain its plan to improve the city's water and sewage system. Voters will be asked to approve the proposal in a July 27 election.

Almost all types of industry require large quantities of water -- for processing, production, air-conditioning, and fire protection. For this reason, the American Waterworks association has said that "the city that has an inadequate water supply will not attract new business."

The two $600,000 proposals for water and sewer improvements will assure that Sikeston has both a sewer and water system adequate for industrial purposes.

The water and sewer improvements -- if approved by the voters in a special bond election July 27 -- will make Sikeston a more attractive location for industry. Among other things, the proposals will mean decreased fire protection costs for any new business moving to Sikeston.

The improvements in the municipal water works will make available higher water pressures for industrial sprinkler systems. Higher pressures in the sprinkler systems will reduce the cost of industrial fire insurance.

In addition to the savings on fire insurance, businesses will be able to cut down on the initial cost of sprinkler systems. At present, some Sikeston plants must bring water pressures in their sprinkler systems up to acceptable standards by using a supplementary pump. The expense of the extra pump will be eliminated by increased water pressure provided by the improvements.

Savings on fire insurance and sprinkler system facilities which result from the planned improvements will improve the city's ability to attract new industry. Thus, the plan to expand Sikeston's water and sewer systems will have an important effect on the economy of the city.

The board of public works will answer any questions concerning either the water or sewer improvements proposals. Write or call the board of public works, 201 North New Madrid, phone GR 1-3328.

Vance-Whitworth Has New Product

Development of a new product by Vance - Whitworth Incorporated, is announced in St. Louis Commerce," official publication of the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis.

The product is a management information system with features designed to meet specific business needs for gathering and reporting business data more economically and more accurately.

Named model 1104, it is a data recording and transmission system consisting of an input programmer, a verify printer, a paper tape reader and punch, and coding unit. The system provides for transmission to a terminal, which punches data processing cards. Special features will be available to transmit to a paper tape punch as well as to many computer systems.

Ray M. Whitworth, company president, explained that earlier equipment of the firm had paved the way for the new system development.

"Our highly simplified data recorder, which we began marketing last fall, presented these new opportunities in the automation field for us," Whitworth said. "This easily operated data recorder made it possible for untrained personnel to code information for direct access to computer systems and thus expanded the use of computer facilities and data processing equipment for businesses of all types and sizes. Further market studies in the data handling area revealed the need for improved methods of gathering information and for rushing volumes of business data from point to point. Our engineering development group designed the new 1104 system to fill these needs.

8. City Bond Issue

Improvements Would Help Sikeston Lure Industry

Editor's Note: This is the eighth in a series of articles prepared by the board of public works to explain its plan to improve the city's water and sewage system. Voters will be asked to approve the proposal in a July 27 election.

Almost all types of industry require large quantities of water -- for processing, production, air-conditioning, and fire protection. For this reason, the American Waterworks association has said that "the city that has an inadequate water supply will not attract new business."

The two $600,000 proposals for water and sewer improvements will assure that Sikeston has both a sewer and water system adequate for industrial purposes.

The water and sewer improvements -- if approved by the voters in a special bond election July 27 -- will make Sikeston a more attractive location for industry. Among other things, the proposals will mean decreased fire protection costs for any new business moving to Sikeston.

The improvements in the municipal water works will make available higher water pressures for industrial sprinkler systems. Higher pressures in the sprinkler systems will reduce the cost of industrial fire insurance.

In addition to the savings on fire insurance, businesses will be able to cut down on the initial cost of sprinkler systems. At present, some Sikeston plants must bring water pressures in their sprinkler systems up to acceptable standards by using a supplementary pump. The expense of the extra pump will be eliminated by increased water pressure provided by the improvements.

Savings on fire insurance and sprinkler system facilities which result from the planned improvements will improve the city's ability to attract new industry. Thus, the plan to expand Sikeston's water and sewer systems will have an important effect on the economy of the city.

The board of public works will answer any questions concerning either the water or sewer improvements proposals. Write or call the board of public works, 201 North New Madrid, phone GR 1-3328.

Storms Strike Two Regions

Thunderstorms and rain pummeled scattered sections of the midwest and southeast early today and an unseasonal chill dipped into portions of the Northeast.

But there was only a little break in the crippling drought that gripped portions of the southwest, the northeast and sections of the far west.

Rain fell over wide sections of the midwest, starting mostly late Tuesday night.

Among low eastern readings today was 38 degrees at Old Town, Maine.

Tornadoes and heavy rain, in some places accompanied by hail, struck portions of the nation's midsection Tuesday.

At least two tornadoes dipped over Minnesota towns.

A tornado was sighted over Chicago's South Side. A tornado did property damage near Milledgeville, in Carroll County, in northwestern Illinois. Tornadic winds uprooted trees and downed utility lines at Crystal Lake, Ill., 50 miles north of Chicago.

A flash flood in Hays, Kan., forced several families from their homes. There was some light flooding also in west central and northeastern Kansas, and northwestern Missouri Tuesday night.

Winds of tornadic proportion raked sections of Oklahoma. A funnel cloud was signted at Mexico, Mo.

Marines Land In Viet Nam

Vance-Whitworth Has New Product

Development of a new product by Vance - Whitworth Incorporated, is announced in St. Louis Commerce," official publication of the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis.

The product is a management information system with features designed to meet specific business needs for gathering and reporting business data more economically and more accurately.

Named model 1104, it is a data recording and transmission system consisting of an input programmer, a verify printer, a paper tape reader and punch, and coding unit. The system provides for transmission to a terminal, which punches data processing cards. Special features will be available to transmit to a paper tape punch as well as to many computer systems.

Ray M. Whitworth, company president, explained that earlier equipment of the firm had paved the way for the new system development.

"Our highly simplified data recorder, which we began marketing last fall, presented these new opportunities in the automation field for us," Whitworth said. "This easily operated data recorder made it possible for untrained personnel to code information for direct access to computer systems and thus expanded the use of computer facilities and data processing equipment for businesses of all types and sizes. Further market studies in the data handling area revealed the need for improved methods of gathering information and for rushing volumes of business data from point to point. Our engineering development group designed the new 1104 system to fill these needs.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Wednesday, July 7 Thousands jam streets during Annual Jelly Roll Festival in Mobile, Ala.

* * *

The Associated Press developed a Fourth of July story by checking on Independence day plans of the nation's six communities named Independence.

Guess which one most people would rather live in based on the report?

If you read the feature story in Saturday's Daily Standard you probably already have made up your mind. A dollar to a doughnut it was be Independence, Calif.

You probably didn't know that it existed. We didn't but it must be a dandy community. It is lively, maybe a bit old fashioned.

Independence, Calif., planned a whingdinger of a Fourth of July celebration while other Independences just continued to sleep on. Or perhaps they concluded that their city was too sophisticated to celebrate the Fourth.

We suspect that some Sikeston residents regard a Fourth of July observance as too rural, too cornball, too small town, too old fashioned and imagine themselves too sophisticated for this type of entertainment. Not us. We want to look at the majestic arch of the sky rockets, hear the thunder of loud explosives bursting like stars in the heavens and view the American Flag outlined in fire against the inky night. And why shouldn't we?

Independence, Calif., only has 250 souls to participate in its Fourth of July hoopla but there are dances and other entertainment, a flag raising ceremony, barbecues and frog races. Sounds like fun.

No, we wouldn't want to see such a big Fourth of July celebration that it would diminish the luster of the Jaycee Bootheel World Championship Rodeo or compete with the SEMO Shrine Horse Show.

But the day should be set apart. Something more should be provided than family picnics and the rush by motorists to get out on the congested highways.

How about a fireworks display? Relatively small contributions in the business section would produce a spectacular show lasting from 15 minutes to a half hour.

This would take people away from the idiot boxes in their living rooms and give them a change of pace. It also would keep them off the highway and promote public safety. A third bonus would be in satisfying the desire for fireworks without exposing people to the hazard of individual handling of the explosives.

Sikeston young people should be better satisfied to give up shooting fireworks if the community held a fireworks display for them. This should make life safer and law enforcement easier.

The show would fun. Safe fun. How about it next year?

OVER FIRST HURDLE

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has cleared his first hurdle as Missouri chief executive.

The first hurdle -- that of success in getting his program through the legislature -- is one of the most difficult for a governor to achieve.

It is hard for many political reasons. A victorious election campaign always produces deep wounds in any political party. Politicians are extremely sensitive about their own power. Legislators are apt to resent any governor and to try to prove to him that they won't be rubber stamps.

Many a worthwhile state program originating in a governor's office has been wrecked in the legislature because of petty resentment and political chips-on-the shoulder attitudes.

In the light of history, Governor Hearnes is off to a good start as chief executive with a record of astonishing success in the legislature.

Like President Lyndon B. Johnson, who knows from experience how to put his program through Congress, Governor Hearnes also has much experience in the legislative field, is acquainted with the legislators and knows how to present his program to them effectively.

The Hearnes legislative program was not one which was entirely conceived by public demand. Rather the program bore an unmistakable Hearnes' stamp -- a program that he thought Missouri needed after a long period of work with legislation and of observation of state government operations.

This didn't make his task easier because the public wasn't in the mood to build bonfires under the legislators to induce them to adopt the Hearnes program. The average Missourian isn't much concerned how many terms the governor can serve or how many serve on the state highway commission.

Many observers have been astonished by Hearnes' legislative effectiveness. His primary election battle with the Establishment in which he defeated Lt. Gov. Hilary Bush was hard fought and at times a bitter clash that left its mark on the Democratic party in Missouri. He had much to overcome and it is to his credit that he was able to accomplish so much even though the high quality of his legislative experience and knowledge is admitted.

A legislative session alone does not either make or break a governor but it is a difficult experience for any governor.

Governor Hearnes now has the session behind him. It could hardly have been more successful. He can now turn to other state problems. If he proves to be as successful in dealing with these as he was with the legislature his term as governor will be long remembered and much appreciated by Missourians. We wish him well.

AFTER CONNECTICUT

A 21-member commission set up by the Massachusetts legislature to study revision of the state's anti-contraception law is due to submit recommendations to Gov. John Volpe before today, Wednesday, July 7. It is virtually certain that the group will call for repeal of the greater part of the present statutes.

For one thing, the June 7 decision of the U.S. Supreme Court striking down Connecticut's law against birth control has made much of the Massachusetts law a dead letter. Even more important, however, is the changed attitude of Richard Cardinal Cushing, head of the Boston Roman Catholic archdiocese. In 1948 he actively opposed a referendum looking to repeal of the birth control measure.

Cardinal Cushing now says he will not oppose an attempt to do away with the Massachusetts restrictions. Although he cannot "in conscience" approve repeal legislation, he said he would "make no effort to impose my beliefs or opinions on others."

The statute in Massachusetts, where contraceptive medicine is unlawful, does not differ markedly from the birth control laws in other states. But it has been more closely adhered to by the courts. Massachusetts authorities raided a birth control clinic in Salem way back in 1937 and got the Supreme Judicial Court of the state to uphold the ensuing convictions. The court said the state had power to act in support of its view that use of contraceptives would promote sexual immorality and "expose the commonwealth to grave dangers."

What is danger to one generation, however, may be regarded as a protection by another. Catholic teaching of birth control will be reviewed at the final session of the Vatican Council beginning in September. Cardinal Cushing seemed to speak for a more liberal approach when he declared, "My sympathy and love goes out to those people who are having problems with large families, and who are worried sick about the Church's teaching. I'm hoping and praying that all these problems will be settled by the Vatican commission's report."

DA NANG, South Viet Nam AP -- An open letter home:

Dear friend wife:

Believe me, baby, when I get back home you're going to be the one who carries out the garbage. It's an old Vietnamese custom that a lot of American men over here are beginning to think makes sense.

I know that there is nothing makes a U. S. woman madder than to tell her she has an easy life -- that she is overprivileged and underworked. But I tell you, roundeyes, your eyes would get even rounder if you saw how Vietnamese women live -- and apparently like it.

Men have only two chief labor-saving devices in this country -- women and water buffaloes. The women work harder.

In the rice paddy country the men and the buffaloes feel they've done their bit when they've finished plowing. But women toil in the fields, tend the kids, do the cooking and the laundering, and take care of the chickens, ducks and pigs. The ideal wife is one who produces a good rice crop and a baby every year.

Most of the country's products seem to be transported on women's backs. They use bamboo shoulder poles from which heavily loaded baskets are suspended fore and aft. To balance the baskets, the women walk with a peculiar rhythmic shuffle.

The Vietnamese toiler earns her dough the hard way in the city, too. About 20 per cent of the labor force is feminine.

Women work as ditch diggers, dock wallopers, hod carriers, plasterers and as laborers on heavy construction projects. They get a daily wage of from about 85 cents to $1.20 -- depending on their skills.

"The average woman gets almost twice as much done as a man in a day," said an American construction engineer. "Of course, I don't know whether she lasts as long.

"But they're all pretty cheerful about life, hard as it is. They aren't nearly as frustrated as our women back home. Maybe they've got the answer over here."

It seems that the harder wives work, the fewer husbands die of ulcers and coronaries.

Well, I guess that's about all the good news I have to report for now. When I get home, get ready to set another rice bowl on the table. By the way, I'm bringing along a bamboo shoulder pole -- to make your trips to the supermarket a little easier. You'll get the hang of it in no time, and be the envy of all the other wives in the neighborhood.

Your ever-thoughtful husband Harold

Viet Cong Allies in Hanoi Labor Parley Plan For Sabotage In U. S. Factories

Washington, D. C.: -- For weeks now CIA specialists have been perturbed over six days in June -- from the second through the seventh, to be specific.

American intelligence agents are certain that world - wide sabotage of American "war-support" factories and installations was planned at a "world labor conference" held in Hanoi, North Viet Nam, during the first days of the month.

This undermining will not be limited to U. S. plants, piers, rails and highways. The Hanoi "actionist conference" has also devised strategy for mass picketing, communication disruption, and anit-war demonstrations in "all" lands supporting the American and South Vietnamese coalition.

Lest this report be construed as CIA jitters by a public which is abandoning James Bond for the beaches, it should be recalled that the news is from the Chinese sector of the Communist poly - centric world. There, they believe in guerrilla tactics in asphalt as well as monsoon-sodden green jungles.

It would be naivete, soaked through with carelessness to ignore the Hanoi labor conference or any of its decisions. These were made at the "International Trade Union Committee for Solidarity with the Workers and People of Viet Nam against U. S. Imperialist Aggression" parley. Typically long title. Typically Peiping Chinese, too.

There were over 600 labor delegates in the Ba Ting public hall. They came from such distant points as Santo Domingo, Caracas, Venezuela, Panama, and the "down under" nations.

They were flown in from Leopoldville and Portugal's Angola. There were "Americans" too.

Scores of resolutions, none of them calmly couched, were passed in denunciation of the U. S. presence in Southeast Asia. Many of the documents call for a "mass movement" in "all countries" to drive the U. S. from South Viet Nam.

Nothing was left to the imagination of the 600 delegates. Country by country they were briefed on how to implement the "vigorous mass Aid Viet Nam and Resist America movement" which the hosts said "is unfolding throughout the world." This labor conference obviously was vital to Mao's strategy. It cost the Hanoi-Peiping axis over half a million dollars.

Specific examples were given the Communist labor men-- some of them leaders in Western nations, some "sleepers" and "infiltrators."

The delegates were told how "workers' action" kept a former U. S. State Dept. official from delivering television broadcasts in Japan.

The conclave was briefed on methods used by "seamen in Melbourne (Australia)(who) refused to load barbed wire to be shipped to South Viet Nam because U. S. imperialism uses it to build strategic hamlets."

The delegations were gleefully told of action of the Japanese docks by longshoremen who refused to load ammunition and equipment on U. S. vessels for South Viet Nam. Speeches were made on techniques of some Japanese seamen who kept seafarers off such freighters after the loading was finally completed.

There was talk of picketing and disrupting traffic and transportation in an out of American plants making munitions, napalm, helicopters, war field jeeps, special amphibious carriers, and, if possible, air craft.

Techniques were offered--but won't be reported here. Sufficient to say there are self-avowed revolutionary youth bands in the U. S. which are "romantically" attuned to Mao's guerrilla-ism. One such band has an annual budget of well over $100,000 a year.

Even in America, this does not grow on trees. They get it from somewhere. And they don't get it simply because some wear beards. They're ready for action as soon as they get the word.

And, judging from the "resolutions", word won't be long coming from Hanoi.

After periodic cool spells in June, the weather in Missouri usually settles down in July and gives promise of real summer warmth with swimming, fishing, boating and vacationing in full swing.

Unfortunately, however, the traffic accident record, including fatalities, soars rapidly to tragic heights in this otherwise enjoyable month.

The Missouri Highway Patrol reports that last July, the death figure jumped to 150 from 107 during the previous month. In like manner, the total number of accidents investigated by the Patrol went from 2,283 in June to 2,359 in July.

In comparing the Missouri fatality record for January and July, for the years 1955 thru 1964, a study by the Highway Patrol showed that except for 1957, July has shown a monthly fatality increase of up to 66 and a total increase of 286 fatalities over the month of January during the past ten years.

Commenting on this study, the Patrol Superintendent, Colonel Hugh H. Waggoner, said: "Most drivers realize the need to be careful during the hazardous winter month of January. Roads are often slippery and visibility is sometimes limited. However, when good weather prevails, as it usually does in July, motorists let down their guard and become careless in their driving.

"Statistics from last year's black traffic record show that most of Missouri's rural traffic accidents occurred on clear, dry days. It is imperative, therefore, that motorists stay alert and drive carefully no matter what the season of the year or the condition of the roadway," Colonel Waggoner concluded.

MACARTHUR'S RETURN HOME

General Douglas MacArthur's name was placed on the Republican Presidential Primary Ballot in Wisconsin in 1944. He made no campaign. Joe McCarthy ruefully confessed to me his machine supported Harold Stassen, who won.

Early in 1948 Congress invited MacArthur to come from the Orient to visit the United States. He was not accepting and I cabled, urging him to act upon the invitation. My efforts were fruitless. He felt duty required his presence in the Far East.

After he was fired, when his homecoming plane reached San Francisco the welcome was tumultuous. He was invited to many cities where he was received with devotion and afforded highest honors, including his appearance before a joint session of Congress when he delivered his "Old Soldiers Just Fade Away" Address which will live forever.

Polls confirmed his popularity with the electorate. In addition to his military victories he had displayed unsurpassed statesmanship in rehabilitating Japan. I thought General MacArthur, as President, could save the free world and made about two trips per month to New York trying to get him to accept if offered the Republican nomination.

At the 1952 Republican Convention in Chicago I organized a MacArthur Committee of about 30 headquartered in the Conrad Hilton Hotel. The committee included members of Congress and unselfish citizens who, in addition to their campaigning, insisted on sharin the expense.

The gracious Mrs. MacArthur was highly important in his public appearances. He did not bring her to Chicago when he came to keynote the convention, and he promptly returned to New York. He was determined not to take the nomination away from Senator Taft whom he thought was entitled to it. World history would have been different but for this loyalty to a good man. HLH

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Many Senators who will finally vote to confirm controversial ex-Gov. James P. Coleman of Mississippi for the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals are wondering why he should not be given the same long "rest" that another Mississippian, chairman James Eastland, has given to Jewish and Negro judges.

Every Negro judge to come before Sen. Eastland's Judiciary Committee has been kept waiting nine months to a year for confirmation. The same has been true of most Jewish judges. One, David Rabinowitz of Wisconsin, nominated Sept. 6, 1963, was kept waiting over a year, then never confirmed at all.

Judge Thurgood Marshall, counsel for the NAACP and a Negro, was nominated Sept. 26, 1961, to the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals and kept waiting one year by Sen. Eastland. It was only on Sept. 11, 1962, that the pressure of other Senators forced his confirmation.

Judge Irving Ben Cooper, nominated to the U.S. District Court in New York at the same time, was kept waiting by Eastland one whole year, finally was confirmed Sept. 20, 1962. Cooper is Jewish.

Judge Spottswood Robinson III of Virginia, a Negro, was kept waiting nine months before confirmation to the U.S. District Court. Eastland, with the help of other Southern Senators on the Judiciary Committee, kept him waiting from Oct. 1, 1963, to July 1, 1964.

Even before the Senator from Mississippi became chairman of the Judiciary Committee, that committee, dominated by Southern Senators, kept Negro and Jewish judges waiting interminably. Judge William Hastie, first Negro to be appointed to any Court of Appeals, had to wait from Oct. 16, 1949, to July 19, 1950, before the stubborn Judiciary Committee would confirm him.

—REST FOR COLEMAN—

Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of Baltimore, a Jew, was nominated to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit July 15, 1955, and kept waiting one full year, to July 16, 1956, before he could break the racial-religious barrier inside the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Much earlier, Louis D. Brandeis, a Jew and one of the most renowned Justices of the Supreme Court, was nominated Jan. 28, 1916, but not confirmed until May 24 of that year. He had to undergo fifteen weeks of intensive cross examination prior to confirmation.

Some Senators are inclined to argue that since Gov. Coleman is ill and presumably cannot serve on the Court of Appeals even if confirmed in a hurry, there is no great rush about an early vote.

They also point out that the Court is now in summer recess and he could not sit actively until the fall anyway.

Finally, they argue that, though they have nothing personal against Gov. Coleman, he does have a long record of opposition to the Supreme Court which should be examined carefully, therefore should be given the same lengthy scrutiny which another Mississippian, Jim Eastland, gave to Negro and Jewish judges in the past.

—GOP MAYOR OF NEW YORK?—

Leadership of the biggest city in the United States, New York, is now likely to go to a Republican — courtesy of LBJ.

The President, with one telephone call, could have prevented Rep. John Lindsay, the New York liberal Republican, from getting the endorsement of New York's Liberal party, which Lindsay must have to win.

But Johnson never made that call.

Alec Rose, head of the Liberal party, waited for the call, even asked some of his friends close to the White House to sound out the President. Rose was willing to hold up the Liberal party's endorsement of Lindsay if Johnson had another Democratic candidate in mind.

But Johnson never called.

No explanation was given. However, it can be reported that the President was terribly engrossed in the Vietnamese war and his problems with Congress; also didn't feel he should get involved in a local city race. It was no accident that he stayed on the sidelines.

Note — Democratic leaders agree that the President should not get too mixed up in local politics, but say the chairman of the Democratic National Committee should. In fact, that is supposed to be the Chairman's job. However, the Democratic National Committee is now limping along with the same frayed chairman, John Bailey of Connecticut, that it had under Kennedy. Bailey was no great asset then, is less an asset under Johnson.

Fisherman are protesting the Navy's explosion of 4,000 tons of old mine torpedoes 75 miles off New York, New Jersey and Virginia on July 15, as a danger to one of the best fishing grounds of the East Coast. The Navy wants to get rid of a lot of aging explosives; at the same time test the underwater sound waves from such explosions. The Navy, after consulting with the Department of Fish and Wildlife, claims there's no danger to fish because they don't live 1,000 feet down. At that depth the explosion will take place. . . It was four key Republican Congressmen, including the probable next mayor of New York, who helped the Johnson Administration pass the Public Housing Bill with rent subsidies for middle-income families. The GOP New York Congressmen were: John Lindsay, now running for mayor; Ogden Reid, former Ambassador to Israel; Seymour Halpern, New York City, and Frank Horton, Rochester, N.Y.. . . The White House also had to promise big city votes for the Southern cotton bill in order to get the Public Housing Bill passed.

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Bob Kenney withstood urging to relinquish spotlight to LBJ: Pope's UN visit great opportunity for President: Humphrey forces back Francis Kelly against Kennedy candidate for New York Demo leadership.

WASHINGTON -- The inside story of how Bobby Kennedy took the play away from President Johnson on his United National speech in San Francisco can now be told.

The young new senator from New York made his maiden speech in the Senate two days before Johnson was scheduled to go to San Francisco for the 20th anniversary of the United Nations for a speech which many newsmen had built up as a major foreign policy message.

Though the President was told the San Francisco celebration was to be chiefly ceremonial, some White House advisers hoped that with the world situation deteriorating, the President would deliver a milestone message for peace. Among other things, they suggested a program to stop the spread of nuclear arms.

Simultaneously it became known that Bobby Kennedy planned to use this same subject in his maiden Senate speech so, Averell Harriman, former ambassador to Moscow, now State Department troubleshooter, went to see Bobby, asked him not to make the speech.

Harriman explained that the President would make a similar speech, but if Bobby went ahead with the nuclear ban speech two days before San Francisco, the President would not. He could not be in the position of me-tooing a Senator.

Harriman and Bobby are old and close friends. Bobby listened courteously but made no promises.

Later, another high emissary from the White House talked to the young Senator, also urged him either to postpone the speech or talk on another subject. Bobby indicated that if he received a direct request from the President he would be glad to change his speech. But the request never came.

Kennedy went ahead with his speech on June 23. It turned out to be a good speech embracing most of the administration program on curtailing nuclear arms but implying that the Johnson administration had been too slow in pushing them. The President did not me-too him at San Francisco. His speech was considered lacking in originality and uninspiring.

--POPE PAUL AND LBJ--

Though President Johnson missed the boat oratorically at San Francisco, he has another chance to push the cause of peace coming up soon.

When the United Nations General Assembly opens in September, it's almost certain that Pope Paul will attend.

It will be a most historic mission from several viewpoints. It will be the first time in history that a pope leaves the Vatican to come to the United States. Second, Pope Paul has made it clear that he is terribly worried about the peace of the world. He has made many statements emphasizing this, will emphasize it further by coming to New York.

This gives a unique opportunity to the greatest political leader of the Western world to meet the greatest spiritual leader of the world, and work together to give the world some new leadership for better understanding and peace.

--SPARRING OVER NEW YORK--

After waiting on the sidelines for some time, the Humphrey forces have decided to challenge Bobby Kennedy's reach for political control of New York state politics.

Francis Kelly, a dynamic and likeable young Irishman who served as assistant campaign manager for Humphrey last fall, will soon announce his bid to become Democratic State Chairman of New York.

Kelly is now on the staff of the Vice President's close friend, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, former governor of Minnesota. Previously Kelly was on the Democratic National Committee in Washington, also served as attorney for New York State Dairy Co-ops and as an attorney for the Farmers' Union. He has firm roots in upstate New York politics, where the Democratic Party is usually weak.

The Bobby Kennedy candidate in opposition to Kelly will be Mayor John Burns of Binghamton, who ran unsuccessfully for Lieutenant Governor in 1962. Burns is a popular mayor but, if made Democratic State Chairman, would be under the domination of Bobby's backstage henchman, Paul Corbin.

In the 1960 elections Corbin ruffled so many Democratic leaders that he had his telephone disconnected at Washington Democratic headquarters in order to hasten his departure.

--DIMINISHING KITES--

Though there's been a lot of publicity regarding the diminishing numbers of whooping cranes and headlines every time one of them hatches an egg, another rare bird is in even greater danger of extinction.

It's the Everglades Kite, of which only ten of the species are known to be alive in the entire United States, as against forty whooping cranes.

The Kite has managed to combat civilization in the Florida Everglades National Park, but this year has not returned to its nesting grounds.

Housing projects and truck farms have been its chief enemy, because this bird feeds on an exclusive diet of rare snails. As man drains the swamps of Florida, these snails become more difficult to find.

This year, drought in Southern Florida has hurt the snail population of the Everglades and also the feeding grounds of the Kite. It may be that the last ten Kites have disappeared this year.

NOTE -- Congressional champion of wildlife, Rep. T. A. Thompson, D-La., was tragically killed in a North Carolina auto accident last week.

He had consistently worked for the preservation of game refuges.

The Associated Press developed a Fourth of July story by checking on Independence day plans of the nation's six communities named Independence.

Guess which one most people would rather live in based on the report?

If you read the feature story in Saturday's Daily Standard you probably already have made up your mind. A dollar to a doughnut it was be Independence, Calif.

You probably didn't know that it existed. We didn't but it must be a dandy community. It is lively, maybe a bit old fashioned.

Independence, Calif., planned a whingdinger of a Fourth of July celebration while other Independences just continued to sleep on. Or perhaps they concluded that their city was too sophisticated to celebrate the Fourth.

We suspect that some Sikeston residents regard a Fourth of July observance as too rural, too cornball, too small town, too old fashioned and imagine themselves too sophisticated for this type of entertainment. Not us. We want to look at the majestic arch of the sky rockets, hear the thunder of loud explosives bursting like stars in the heavens and view the American Flag outlined in fire against the inky night. And why shouldn't we?

Independence, Calif., only has 250 souls to participate in its Fourth of July hoopla but there are dances and other entertainment, a flag raising ceremony, barbecues and frog races. Sounds like fun.

No, we wouldn't want to see such a big Fourth of July celebration that it would diminish the luster of the Jaycee Bootheel World Championship Rodeo or compete with the SEMO Shrine Horse Show.

But the day should be set apart. Something more should be provided than family picnics and the rush by motorists to get out on the congested highways.

How about a fireworks display? Relatively small contributions in the business section would produce a spectacular show lasting from 15 minutes to a half hour.

This would take people away from the idiot boxes in their living rooms and give them a change of pace. It also would keep them off the highway and promote public safety. A third bonus would be in satisfying the desire for fireworks without exposing people to the hazard of individual handling of the explosives.

Sikeston young people should be better satisfied to give up shooting fireworks if the community held a fireworks display for them. This should make life safer and law enforcement easier.

The show would fun. Safe fun. How about it next year?

OVER FIRST HURDLE

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has cleared his first hurdle as Missouri chief executive.

The first hurdle -- that of success in getting his program through the legislature -- is one of the most difficult for a governor to achieve.

It is hard for many political reasons. A victorious election campaign always produces deep wounds in any political party. Politicians are extremely sensitive about their own power. Legislators are apt to resent any governor and to try to prove to him that they won't be rubber stamps.

Many a worthwhile state program originating in a governor's office has been wrecked in the legislature because of petty resentment and political chips-on-the shoulder attitudes.

In the light of history, Governor Hearnes is off to a good start as chief executive with a record of astonishing success in the legislature.

Like President Lyndon B. Johnson, who knows from experience how to put his program through Congress, Governor Hearnes also has much experience in the legislative field, is acquainted with the legislators and knows how to present his program to them effectively.

The Hearnes legislative program was not one which was entirely conceived by public demand. Rather the program bore an unmistakable Hearnes' stamp -- a program that he thought Missouri needed after a long period of work with legislation and of observation of state government operations.

This didn't make his task easier because the public wasn't in the mood to build bonfires under the legislators to induce them to adopt the Hearnes program. The average Missourian isn't much concerned how many terms the governor can serve or how many serve on the state highway commission.

Many observers have been astonished by Hearnes' legislative effectiveness. His primary election battle with the Establishment in which he defeated Lt. Gov. Hilary Bush was hard fought and at times a bitter clash that left its mark on the Democratic party in Missouri. He had much to overcome and it is to his credit that he was able to accomplish so much even though the high quality of his legislative experience and knowledge is admitted.

A legislative session alone does not either make or break a governor but it is a difficult experience for any governor.

Governor Hearnes now has the session behind him. It could hardly have been more successful. He can now turn to other state problems. If he proves to be as successful in dealing with these as he was with the legislature his term as governor will be long remembered and much appreciated by Missourians. We wish him well.

AFTER CONNECTICUT

A 21-member commission set up by the Massachusetts legislature to study revision of the state's anti-contraception law is due to submit recommendations to Gov. John Volpe before today, Wednesday, July 7. It is virtually certain that the group will call for repeal of the greater part of the present statutes.

For one thing, the June 7 decision of the U.S. Supreme Court striking down Connecticut's law against birth control has made much of the Massachusetts law a dead letter. Even more important, however, is the changed attitude of Richard Cardinal Cushing, head of the Boston Roman Catholic archdiocese. In 1948 he actively opposed a referendum looking to repeal of the birth control measure.

Cardinal Cushing now says he will not oppose an attempt to do away with the Massachusetts restrictions. Although he cannot "in conscience" approve repeal legislation, he said he would "make no effort to impose my beliefs or opinions on others."

The statute in Massachusetts, where contraceptive medicine is unlawful, does not differ markedly from the birth control laws in other states. But it has been more closely adhered to by the courts. Massachusetts authorities raided a birth control clinic in Salem way back in 1937 and got the Supreme Judicial Court of the state to uphold the ensuing convictions. The court said the state had power to act in support of its view that use of contraceptives would promote sexual immorality and "expose the commonwealth to grave dangers."

What is danger to one generation, however, may be regarded as a protection by another. Catholic teaching of birth control will be reviewed at the final session of the Vatican Council beginning in September. Cardinal Cushing seemed to speak for a more liberal approach when he declared, "My sympathy and love goes out to those people who are having problems with large families, and who are worried sick about the Church's teaching. I'm hoping and praying that all these problems will be settled by the Vatican commission's report."

Viet Cong Allies in Hanoi Labor Parley Plan For Sabotage In U. S. Factories

Washington, D. C.: -- For weeks now CIA specialists have been perturbed over six days in June -- from the second through the seventh, to be specific.

American intelligence agents are certain that world - wide sabotage of American "war-support" factories and installations was planned at a "world labor conference" held in Hanoi, North Viet Nam, during the first days of the month.

This undermining will not be limited to U. S. plants, piers, rails and highways. The Hanoi "actionist conference" has also devised strategy for mass picketing, communication disruption, and anit-war demonstrations in "all" lands supporting the American and South Vietnamese coalition.

Lest this report be construed as CIA jitters by a public which is abandoning James Bond for the beaches, it should be recalled that the news is from the Chinese sector of the Communist poly - centric world. There, they believe in guerrilla tactics in asphalt as well as monsoon-sodden green jungles.

It would be naivete, soaked through with carelessness to ignore the Hanoi labor conference or any of its decisions. These were made at the "International Trade Union Committee for Solidarity with the Workers and People of Viet Nam against U. S. Imperialist Aggression" parley. Typically long title. Typically Peiping Chinese, too.

There were over 600 labor delegates in the Ba Ting public hall. They came from such distant points as Santo Domingo, Caracas, Venezuela, Panama, and the "down under" nations.

They were flown in from Leopoldville and Portugal's Angola. There were "Americans" too.

Scores of resolutions, none of them calmly couched, were passed in denunciation of the U. S. presence in Southeast Asia. Many of the documents call for a "mass movement" in "all countries" to drive the U. S. from South Viet Nam.

Nothing was left to the imagination of the 600 delegates. Country by country they were briefed on how to implement the "vigorous mass Aid Viet Nam and Resist America movement" which the hosts said "is unfolding throughout the world." This labor conference obviously was vital to Mao's strategy. It cost the Hanoi-Peiping axis over half a million dollars.

Specific examples were given the Communist labor men--some of them leaders in Western nations, some "sleepers" and "infiltrators."

The delegates were told how "workers' action" kept a former U. S. State Dept. official from delivering television broadcasts in Japan.

The conclave was briefed on methods used by "seamen in Melbourne (Australia) (who) refused to load barbed wire to be shipped to South Viet Nam because U. S. imperialism uses it to build strategic hamlets."

The delegations were gleefully told of action of the Japanese docks by longshoremen who refused to load ammunition and equipment on U. S. vessels for South Viet Nam. Speeches were made on techniques of some Japanese seamen who kept seafarers off such freighters after the loading was finally completed.

There was talk of picketing and disrupting traffic and transportation in an out of American plants making munitions, napalm, helicopters, war field jeeps, special amphibious carriers, and, if possible, air craft.

Techniques were offered--but won't be reported here. Sufficient to say there are self-avowed revolutionary youth bands in the U. S. which are "romantically" attuned to Mao's guerrilla-ism. One such band has an annual budget of well over $100,000 a year.

Even in America, this does not grow on trees. They get it from somewhere. And they don't get it simply because some wear beards. They're ready for action as soon as they get the word.

And, judging from the "resolutions", word won't be long coming from Hanoi.

Hal Boyle

DA NANG, South Viet Nam AP -- An open letter home:

Dear friend wife:

Believe me, baby, when I get back home you're going to be the one who carries out the garbage. It's an old Vietnamese custom that a lot of American men over here are beginning to think makes sense.

I know that there is nothing makes a U. S. woman madder than to tell her she has an easy life -- that she is overprivileged and underworked. But I tell you, roundeyes, your eyes would get even rounder if you saw how Vietnamese women live -- and apparently like it.

Men have only two chief labor-saving devices in this country -- women and water buffaloes. The women work harder.

In the rice paddy country the men and the buffaloes feel they've done their bit when they've finished plowing. But women toil in the fields, tend the kids, do the cooking and the laundering, and take care of the chickens, ducks and pigs. The ideal wife is one who produces a good rice crop and a baby every year.

Most of the country's products seem to be transported on women's backs. They use bamboo shoulder poles from which heavily loaded baskets are suspended fore and aft. To balance the baskets, the women walk with a peculiar rhythmic shuffle.

The Vietnamese toiler earns her dough the hard way in the city, too. About 20 per cent of the labor force is feminine.

Women work as ditch diggers, dock wallopers, hod carriers, plasterers and as laborers on heavy construction projects. They get a daily wage of from about 85 cents to $1.20 -- depending on their skills.

"The average woman gets almost twice as much done as a man in a day," said an American construction engineer. "Of course, I don't know whether she lasts as long.

"But they're all pretty cheerful about life, hard as it is. They aren't nearly as frustrated as our women back home. Maybe they've got the answer over here."

It seems that the harder wives work, the fewer husbands die of ulcers and coronaries.

Well, I guess that's about all the good news I have to report for now. When I get home, get ready to set another rice bowl on the table. By the way, I'm bringing along a bamboo shoulder pole -- to make your trips to the supermarket a little easier. You'll get the hang of it in no time, and be the envy of all the other wives in the neighborhood.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Many Senators who will finally vote to confirm controversial ex-Gov. James P. Coleman of Mississippi for the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals are wondering why he should not be given the same long "rest" that another Mississippian, chairman James Eastland, has given to Jewish and Negro judges.

Every Negro judge to come before Sen. Eastland's Judiciary Committee has been kept waiting nine months to a year for confirmation. The same has been true of most Jewish judges. One, David Rabinowitz of Wisconsin, nominated Sept. 6, 1963, was kept waiting over a year, then never confirmed at all.

Judge Thurgood Marshall, counsel for the NAACP and a Negro, was nominated Sept. 26, 1961, to the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals and kept waiting one year by Sen. Eastland. It was only on Sept. 11, 1962, that the pressure of other Senators forced his confirmation.

Judge Irving Ben Cooper, nominated to the U.S. District Court in New York at the same time, was kept waiting by Eastland one whole year, finally was confirmed Sept. 20, 1962. Cooper is Jewish.

Judge Spottswood Robinson III of Virginia, a Negro, was kept waiting nine months before confirmation to the U.S. District Court. Eastland, with the help of other Southern Senators on the Judiciary Committee, kept him waiting from Oct. 1, 1963, to July 1, 1964.

Even before the Senator from Mississippi became chairman of the Judiciary Committee, that committee, dominated by Southern Senators, kept Negro and Jewish judges waiting interminably. Judge William Hastie, first Negro to be appointed to any Court of Appeals, had to wait from Oct. 16, 1949, to July 19, 1950, before the stubborn Judiciary Committee would confirm him.

—REST FOR COLEMAN—

Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of Baltimore, a Jew, was nominated to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit July 15, 1955, and kept waiting one full year, to July 16, 1956, before he could break the racial-religious barrier inside the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Much earlier, Louis D. BRANDEIS, A Jew and one of the most renowned Justices of the Supreme Court, was nominated Jan. 28, 1916, but not confirmed until May 24 of that year. He had to undergo fifteen weeks of intensive cross examination prior to confirmation.

Some Senators are inclined to argue that since Gov. Coleman is ill and presumably cannot serve on the Court of Appeals even if confirmed in a hurry, there is no great rush about an early vote.

They also point out that the Court is now in summer recess and he could not sit actively until the fall anyway.

Finally, they argue that, though they have nothing personal against Gov. Coleman, he does have a long record of opposition to the Supreme Court which should be examined carefully, therefore should be given the same lengthy scrutiny which another Mississippian, J i m Eastland, gave to Negro and Jewish judges in the past.

—GOP MAYOR OF NEW YORK?—

Leadership of the biggest city in the United States, New York, is now likely to go to a Republican — courtesy of LBJ.

The President, with one telephone call, could have prevented Rep. John Lindsay, the New York liberal Republican, from getting the endorsement of New York's Liberal party, which Lindsay must have to win.

But Johnson never made that call.

Alec Rose, head of the Liberal party, waited for the call, even asked some of his friends close to the White House to sound out the President. Rose was willing to hold up the Liberal party's endorsement of Lindsay if Johnson had another Democratic candidate in mind.

But Johnson never called.

No explanation was given. However, it can be reported that the President was terribly engrossed in the Vietnamese war and his problems with Congress; also didn't feel he should get involved in a local city race. It was no accident that he stayed on the sidelines.

Note — Democratic leaders agree that the President should not get too mixed up in local politics, but say the chairman of the Democratic National Committee should. In fact, that is supposed to be the Chairman's job. However, the Democratic National Committee is now limping along with the same frayed chairman, John Bailey of Connecticut, that it had under Kennedy. Bailey was no great asset then, is less an asset under Johnson.

—HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES—

Fisherman are protesting the Navy's explosion of 4,000 tons of old mine torpedoes 75 miles off New York, New Jersey and Virginia on July 15, as a danger to one of the best fishing grounds of the East Coast. The Navy wants to get rid of a lot of aging explosives; at the same time test the underwater sound waves from such explosions. The Navy, after consulting with the Department of Fish and Wildlife, claims there's no danger to fish because they don't live 1,000 feet down at the [illegible] depth the explosion will take place. . . It was four key Republican Congressmen, including the probable next mayor of New York, who helped the Johnson Administration pass the Public Housing Bill with rent subsidies for middle-income families. The GOP New York Congressmen were: John Lindsay, now running for mayor; Ogden Reid, former Ambassador to Israel; Seymour Halpern, New York City, and Frank Horton, Rochester, N.Y.. . . The White House also had to promise big city votes for the Southern cotton bill in order to get the Public Housing Bill passed.

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Bob Kenney withstood urging to relinquish spotlight to LBJ: Pope's UN visit great opportunity for President; Humphrey forces back Francis Kelly against Kennedy candidate for New York Demo leadership.

WASHINGTON -- The inside story of how Bobby Kennedy took the play away from President Johnson on his United National speech in San Francisco can now be told.

The young new senator from New York made his maiden speech in the Senate two days before Johnson was scheduled to go to San Francisco for the 20th anniversary of the United Nations for a speech which many newsmen had built up as a major foreign policy message.

Though the President was told the San Francisco celebration was to be chiefly ceremonial, some White House advisers hoped that with the world situation deteriorating, the President would deliver a milestone message for peace. Among other things, they suggested a program to stop the spread of nuclear arms.

Simultaneously it became known that Bobby Kennedy planned to use this same subject in his maiden Senate speech so, Averell Harriman, former ambassador to Moscow, now State Department troubleshooter, went to see Bobby, asked him not to make the speech.

Harriman explained that the President would make a similar speech, but if Bobby went ahead with the nuclear ban speech two days before San Francisco, the President would not. He could not be in the position of me-tooing a Senator.

Harriman and Bobby are old and close friends. Bobby listened courteously but made no promises.

Later, another high emissary from the White House talked to the young Senator, also urged him either to postpone the speech or talk on another subject. Bobby indicated that if he received a direct request from the President he would be glad to change his speech. But the request never came.

Kennedy went ahead with his speech on June 23. It turned out to be a good speech embracing most of the administration program on curtailing nuclear arms but implying that the Johnson administration had been too slow in pushing them. The President did not me-too him at San Francisco. His speech was considered lacking in originality and uninspiring.

--POPE PAUL AND LBJ--

Though President Johnson missed the boat oratorically at San Francisco, he has another chance to push the cause of peace coming up soon.

When the United Nations General Assembly opens in September, it's almost certain that Pope Paul will attend.

It will be a most historic mission from several viewpoints. It will be the first time in history that a pope leaves the Vatican to come to the United States. Second, Pope Paul has made it clear that he is terribly worried about the peace of the world. He has made many statements emphasizing this, will emphasize it further by coming to New York.

This gives a unique opportunity to the greatest political leader of the Western world to meet the greatest spiritual leader of the world, and work together to give the world some new leadership for better understanding and peace.

--SPARRING OVER NEW YORK--

After waiting on the sidelines for some time, the Humphrey forces have decided to challenge Bobby Kennedy's reach for political control of New York state politics.

Francis Kelly, a dynamic and likeable young Irishman who served as assistant campaign manager for Humphrey last fall, will soon announce his bid to become Democratic State Chairman of New York.

Kelly is now on the staff of the Vice President's close friend, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, former governor of Minnesota. Previously Kelly was on the Democratic National Committee in Washington, also served as attorney for New York State Dairy Coops and as an attorney for the Farmers' Union. He has firm roots in upstate New York politics, where the Democratic Party is usually weak.

The Bobby Kennedy candidate in opposition to Kelly will be Mayor John Burns of Binghamton, who ran unsuccessfully for Lieutenant Governor in 1962. Burns is a popular mayor but, if made Democratic State Chairman, would be under the domination of Bobby's backstage henchman, Paul Corbin.

In the 1960 elections Corbin ruffled so many Democratic leaders that he had his telephone disconnected at Washington Democratic headquarters in order to hasten his departure.

--DIMINISHING KITES--

Though there's been a lot of publicity regarding the diminishing numbers of whooping cranes and headlines every time one of them hatches an egg, another rare bird is in even greater danger of extinction.

It's the Everglades Kite, of which only ten of the species are known to be alive in the entire United States, as against forty whooping cranes.

The Kite has managed to combat civilization in the Florida Everglades National Park, but this year has not returned to its nesting grounds.

Housing projects and truck farms have been its chief enemy, because this bird feeds on an exclusive diet of rare snails. As man drains the swamps of Florida, these snails become more difficult to find.

This year, drought in Southern Florida has hurt the snail population of the Everglades and also the feeding grounds of the Kite. It may be that the last ten Kites have disappeared this year.

NOTE -- Congressional champion of wildlife, Rep. T. A. Thompson, D-La., was tragically killed in a North Carolina auto accident last week.

He had consistently worked for the preservation of game refuges.

Brock Stars In 7th Straight Win

Scampering Lou Brock helped the Cardinals beat San Francisco, 3-2, Tuesday night at St. Louis for the Redbirds seventh straight victory.

Brock stole his 35th base of the season, scored two runs, drove in one and had three hits.

He singled Dick Groat across in the bottom of the first for the tying run after the Giants had jumped to a quick one-run lead on an RBI single from Willie Mays.

With the score tied 2-2 in the sixth Brock beat out a bunt for a hit, then stole second and came home on a Curt Flood single for the winning run.

The St. Louis sprinter had tied it in the fourth when he turned an ordinary single into a double with a head-first slide into second. He scored when Ken Boyer singled.

St. Louis pulled to within one game of the .500 mark at 40-41 with the victory.

Bob Gibson 10-6 will pitch for the Cardinals tonight in an effort to extend the winning string and pick up his 11th victory of the season. Bob Shaw 7-6 will start for San Francisco.

Steve Barber did it all for Baltimore at Kansas City as the Orioles defeated the Athletics 4-1. Barber drove in two runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly and held the A's to only three hits before needing relief help in the ninth.

John O'Donoghue 4-10 will pitch for the Athletics tonight against the Orioles. John Miller 1-2 will be on the mound for Baltimore.

John Deere Trounced, Rotary Powers Over KSIM

Odd Fellows coasted to an easy victory in Musical League play last night, with an 11 to 1 trouncing of John Deere.

Colwick led Odd Fellows to the victory, as the little right hander hurled a five hitter in his winning performance. Figley was the losing pitcher for John Deere. Figley allowed only 2 hits in the contest. Figley was plaqued with wildness throughout the contest and erratic fielding by his team mates cost him the victory. He and Colwick pitched excellent ball games.

Colwick and Lambert had Odd Fellows only hits, both being singles.

Breedlove was the big stickman in the John Deere line up, having two hits.

Young baseball players with the highest batting averages are those most often exposed to injuries, according to a recent survey.

In a survey taken of various Babe Ruth Leagues, for boys 13-15, said that one of every three injuries reported last season involved base running. Players were hurt four times more often after they reached base than when they were at bat.

The survey revealed that baseball is a relatively safe sport, however. The survey showed that the only two per cent of the boys, in the 160,000-player international teen-age organization reported injuries last year.

Overall, injuries occur about as often to the team in the field as to the team at bat. Player collisions, which accounted for a fourth of all injuries, ranked second to base running as a leading cause. Pitched balls were third, with 16 percent of total injuries.

Injuries to the hands and wrists were the most frequent, amounting to about a fourth, of the total numbers.

Even the coaches and officials were not immune. They accounted for one per cent of the total injuries.

In fact, one of the worst accidents didn't occur on the diamond at all. It involved a boy riding his bicycle with his baseball shoes handing from the handlebars. The shoes became entangled in the spokes, tumbling the young player to the pavement.

In New York City during 1963 there were 549 homicides. The knife (or other sharp weapon) was used in 225 or 41%, while physical force (hands or feet) was used in 101 homicides or 18%. A rifle or shotgun was used in 37 homicides or 7%.

More money is poured into the American economy by shooting enthusiasts than baseball, basketball, football and track combined.

Lema Throws Away Driver

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) —Tony Lema said today he's put his driver away and so he sees no reason why he shouldn't retain the British Open Golf Championship.

The San Leandro, Calif., professional discovered in 24 hours that the 7,037-yard par 73 Royal Birkdale course requires straight and sometimes short tee shots.

As the field of 130 teed off in the 72-hold medal play today, Lema said he was leaning on brassies and spoons and irons off some of the tees.

He had something on his side. Last year he came to St. Andrews and with only nine holes of practice captured the crown.

"I learned the run-up shot there," he said. "And so my wedge which was my darling, had to go back into the bag."

Now he contends, his driver has to disappear from time to time.

Sikeston Wins With Seventh Inning Rally

The Sikeston Babe Ruth Tourney was again in full swing last night with more baseball action from the Sikeston Aces, as they were tumbled with an 11-1 loss by a strong mule nine.

Poplar Bluff, headed all the way by the sparkling pitching of Payne, began the 6 inning game with two hits in the first frame, to score two runs and hold Sikeston to nothing. Again in the second, the mules hammered another hit to drive in two more and hold the Aces hitless and scoreless. As the third came into action, Sikeston took one of their three hits from Payne as Musick drilled a single. Poplar Bluff stopped Sikeston and scattered three singles to bring up two more runs. After three complete, Poplar Bluff had 6 runs and 6 hits. In the fourth Sikeston was nipped off again and Poplar Bluff battered 3 hits and crossed the plate 3 times. The powerful Mules were scoreless in the fith and Sikeston only had a hit from the centerfielder Spitzmiller. In the last frame with the score 9-0, Sikeston managed to gain one run on one hit by McDonald to keep Payne from hurling a shutout.

Newman who started on the mound for the Aces, was charged with the loss. He had aid from Denbow in the fourth together they added up 6 strikeouts to Payne's 5.

Payne not only starred for Poplar Bluff with his 3 hitter but also shined at bat as he stepped to the plate 4 times and smacked 4 singles. Holloway, the shortstop for the victors, pounded 3 for 4.

The mules totaled the game with 11 hits and 11 runs compared to the Aces' 3 hits and 1 run.

DWIGHT L. MOODY: The elect are the 'whosoever wills,' the non-elect are the 'whosoever won'ts.'

KANSAS CITY AP-- The Kansas City Athletics Tuesday changed the starting time of Saturday's game here with the Detroit Tigers from 3:15 p.m. CST, to 6 p.m. The later starting time was set because the game, originally scheduled for national television, was removed from the television schedule.

Our basic-training platoon, after a few weeks at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego, had just completed a particularly strenuous day when our drill instructor called us into formation for a talk by our company commander. The skipper gave a long description of the glory in store for us if we made a career of the Corps. Knowing that most of us were two-year men, he wound up by urging anyone interested in signing up for three years to step forward. Out of 75 men, only one responded — Private Petersen, the most timid boot in the platoon. After reprimanding the rest of us for our lack of esprit de corps, the skipper marched into headquarters with Petersen in tow to sign the extension papers. They had been inside only a few minutes when we hard a verbal explosion, followed by Petersen's hasty retreat. Later, we learned why Petersen had been so willing to change his enlistment for three years. He had originally enlisted for four years! — D. Bridges

Missouri Press Report From Edward Long

The Senate voted last week to step up the Federal share in the battle against three major diseases that take a heavy toll in the health and life of the American people.

Amendments to the Public Health Service Act were passed that would provide substantial Federal assistance in combating heart disease, cancer and stroke. These dread diseases account for seven out of every ten deaths in the United States today. In addition to this tragic loss of human life, the economic losses sustained by the Nation are estimated to have run as high as $31 billion in a single year.

The recently-passed legislation authorizes the Public Health to award grants-in-aid to public and other non-profit organizations to help establish regional medical complexes. These complexes could include medical schools, hospitals or research centers. Their aim would be to assist area physicians in preventing and treating the three diseases.

In 1964, President Johnson appointed a Commission on Heart Disease, Cancer and Stroke to recommend steps for combating them. The legislation recently passed contained many of the recommendations made by the President's Commission. The bill was sent to the other side of Capitol Hill for action by the House of Representatives.

Juvenile delinquency has been a source of increasing national concern in recent years. Last week, the Senate acted to continue Federal effort directed at solving this serious social problem.

A big majority of Senators voted to extend for another two years the Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Offenses Control Act of 1961.

This law established the legislative framework for a three-pronged attack on the problem of crime committed by young Americans. First, the measure authorizes Federal assistance for demonstration projects to develop better methods for the prevention, control and treatment of juvenile delinquency. Second, the act authorizes grants and contracts for training badly needed personnel to work on the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency. Third, it provides for technical assistance services such as the distribution of information developed from the demonstration and training projects.

The act has made a good record of achievement since it became law in 1961. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare reports that nearly 100,000 American youths are currently taking part in demonstration projects. In addition, more than 12,000 persons have been trained to help correct and prevent crime among young people under the Juvenile Delinquency Act.

At the same time, arrests of youthful offenders have increased alarmingly, indicating that juvenile delinquency is still a serious problem in the United States. Following Senate passage, the bill was sent to the White House for the President's signature.

President Johnson recently named a Missouri resident as one of fifteen younger Americans who are to take part in the new White House Fellows program.

The new project is designed to give outstanding young business and professional men first-hand experience in high level operations of the Federal government. The participants will spend a year working for top Federal officials.

Edwin B. Firmage, Assistant Professor of Law at Missouri University, was selected to participate in the new program, and Robert Dubinsky and Charles L. Edson, both of St. Louis, were named as alternates.

The President wants the new program to give recognition to young persons of promise who give of their time to learning more about the public business.

Recently, Florence and I had the opportunity to visit the World's Fair in New York. Am glad to report that Missouri is represented in outstanding fashion at this event.

Am advised that the Missouri pavilion may well be the only state pavilion in the entire U. S. Exhibition to pay its own way from concession fees. There is even a possibility that some of the funds appropriated to finance the pavilion by the State Legislature will be refunded.

The United States Exhibition is generally outstanding, and shows a great improvement over the U. S. exhibit at the last world's fair held in Belgium.

One attraction that we particularly enjoyed was the Hall of Presidents. Featured in this exhibit are pictures of the late President John F. Kennedy and Missouri's own former President, Harry S. Truman.

Cotton has been grown in West Africa for several centuries.

OH, MY ACHING BACK

When these discomforts come on with over-exertion or stress and strain you want relief — want it fast! Doan's Pills by their speedy pain-relieving action work promptly to ease torment of nagging backache, headache and muscular aches and pains.

Also, when mild bladder irritation follows unwise eating or drinking—often setting up a restless, uncomfortable feeling—Doan's Pills work in two ways for comforting relief: 1) their soothing effect on bladder irritation; 2) Doan's mild diuretic action through the kidneys tending to increase output of the 15 miles of kidney tubes.

Missouri Press Report From Edward Long

The Senate voted last week to step up the Federal share in the battle against three major diseases that take a heavy toll in the health and life of the American people.

Amendments to the Public Health Service Act were passed that would provide substantial Federal assistance in combating heart disease, cancer and stroke. These dread diseases account for seven out of every ten deaths in the United States today. In addition to this tragic loss of human life, the economic losses sustained by the Nation are estimated to have run as high as $31 billion in a single year.

The recently-passed legislation authorizes the Public Health to award grants-in-aid to public and other non-profit organizations to help establish regional medical complexes. These complexes could include medical schools, hospitals or research centers. Their aim would be to assist area physicians in preventing and treating the three diseases.

In 1964, President Johnson appointed a Commission on Heart Disease, Cancer and Stroke to recommend steps for combating them. The legislation recently passed contained many of the recommendations made by the President's Commission. The bill was sent to the other side of Capitol Hill for action by the House of Representatives.

Juvenile delinquency has been a source of increasing national concern in recent years. Last week, the Senate acted to continue Federal effort directed at solving this serious social problem.

A big majority of Senators voted to extend for another two years the Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Offenses Control Act of 1961.

This law established the legislative framework for a three-pronged attack on the problem of crime committed by young Americans. First, the measure authorizes Federal assistance for demonstration projects to develop better methods for the prevention, control and treatment of juvenile delinquency. Second, the act authorizes grants and contracts for training badly needed personnel to work on the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency. Third, it provides for technical assistance services such as the distribution of information developed from the demonstration and training projects.

The act has made a good record of achievement since it became law in 1961. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare reports that nearly 100,000 American youths are currently taking part in demonstration projects. In addition, more than 12,000 persons have been trained to help correct and prevent crime among young people under the Juvenile Delinquency Act.

At the same time, arrests of youthful offenders have increased alarmingly, indicating that juvenile delinquency is still a serious problem in the United States. Following Senate passage, the bill was sent to the White House for the President's signature.

President Johnson recently named a Missouri resident as one of fifteen younger Americans who are to take part in the new White House Fellows program.

The new project is designed to give outstanding young business and professional men first-hand experience in high level operations of the Federal government. The participants will spend a year working for top Federal officials.

Watermelons

Watermelon, said Mark Twain, is chief of this world's luxuries. But unlike most luxuries, watermelons are quite plentiful and readily available at attractive prices. In fact, if you haven't had any mouth-watering watermelon yet this season, be sure to make the first taste soon.

Abundant supplies of watermelons at relatively low prices, as a matter of fact, are expected throughout July, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Sizable harvests from both the ~~late spring~~ and early summer crops are expected to overlap in arrival at food stores.

With all this abundance awaiting shoppers, some hints from USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service on how to choose the best of the batch might be handy.

Rapping on a melon to see whether it sounds empty or full is not recommended. Even experts prefer to see the inside to judge a melon's quality. Have a plug cut in a whole watermelon--or buy enough pieces to serve your purposes.

What shoppers should see is firm, succulent "meat" of a good red color; seeds should be dark brown or black.

Light-colored flesh and white seeds indicate immaturity--and this means lack of flavor and sweetness. Dry, mealy or watery, stringy flesh showing darkening or softening next to seeds, indicates overmaturity.

BATTLE OF THE BULGE

Tasty morsels I have eaten,
And every one of them has beaten
Hasty tracks to my midriff.
Now I'm back right where I started,
Fully stuffed and quite well larded;
The bulge and I are locked in mortal tiff.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: When I read your column yesterday I was sure the Chicago wind must have blown your brains out. What do you mean by telling a 41-year-old woman she should be thrilled to be having a baby?

That woman has a son in college and two girls in high school. She was just beginning to enjoy life and now she has to start over with diapers, 2:00 A.M. feedings, shots, sitters, high chair, stroller — the whole bit.

I was 39 when my third son was born. I got sick and tired of having everyone tell me how happy I should be. No woman who had a child under eight opened up a mouth. It was always the ones with college kids and hysterectomies who gave me the "you're so lucky" routine.

I wasn't happy about it then and I'm not happy about it now. This boy is harder to raise than all the others put together. Whenever I take him any place people ask me my grandson's name. I am living for the day I can get this kid in school so I can get off tranquilizers and back on food. — MRS. A. WRECK

Dear Mrs.: I suspect your letter was written at the end of an exhausting day. Let's hear from you after you've had a good night's sleep — about five years from now.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a career woman who was furious because people kept asking her why she wasn't married. Finally she hit on an answer that silenced them promptly. Her reply was, "Just lucky I guess."

I am a business woman, 30, who is faced with a similar problem. I live in a fashionable, well - furnished apartment — alone. When people ask me where I live I say, "The Fountain Plaza." The next question is, "With another girl?" I reply, "No, I live alone." The eyebrows shoot up and the jaws drop — then embarrassed silence. The inference that only a kept woman or a sex maniac would live alone infuriates me.

I live alone because I like privacy. Expensive? Yes. But I'd rather not have a car, or a fur coat, or a trip to the Orient. Can you think of an answer to put these clods in their place? — SOLO AND HAPPY

Dear Solo: The next time someone asks if you have a roommate say, "No. I live alone because I like to do my housework in the nude." That should clear their sinuses.

Dear Ann Landers: My heart goes out to "Heartache in New Haven" — the mother whose handsome, bright and promising son got married and is accepting gifts and support checks from his in-laws.

When I married four years ago my parents gave us a beautiful wedding but refused to give us anything more. It was my husband's grandmother, not his parents, who stepped in and presented us with a blank check to buy furniture. She let us know there was plenty more where that came from. We thought Grandma was great and that my parents were selfish and miserly — and we said so.

We soon learned that Grandma's generosity had some interesting strings attached. Before long we discovered we had no life of our own. Grandma figured since she had been so generous we owed her our lives, and she was there to collect — every day — in one way or another.

We ended up giving everything back, and since we've been on our own we've been much happier, and closer. We appreciate my parents more than ever. They give us nothing but their wonderful company — when we want it — and we love and respect them. — D.H.D.

Dear D.H.D.: Making it on your own is one of life's great joys. Aren't you glad you didn't miss it?

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MISS AMERICA
There she goes--Miss America
The symbol of charm and grace,
With a cloak of hope wrapped about her,
And a confident smile on her face.

May God grant her the ability,
As she goes on her tour of good will,
To impart her sense of humility
To a world that is skeptical still.

Yet may all men know we are unafraid
To fight for the freedom we cherish;
Next year there will be another maid,
May "Miss America" never perish!

--Charlotte T. Place

Only Two Days Left To Get Speed Spanish

Only two days remain for you to take advantage of William Archer's Spanish SPEED SPEECH, now being offered by The Daily Sikeston Standard. With this amazing course, you can learn conversational Spanish with only 24 hours of concentrated study. Order your textbook, two 45 RPM records, and dictionary today, and have the satisfaction of knowing that you, too, can speak Spanish. Time is running out, so mail your order blank today.

Did you know that every word in English that ends in "ly" becomes a Spanish word merely by changing the "ly" to "mente"; for example, "finally" becomes "finalmente". Simple? In this last half minute your Spanish vocabulary has as many "ly" ending words as your English vocabulary.

William Archer was always a diligent student of Spanish, however, when he and his family moved to Mexico, he found that he could not converse with the natives. This complete inability to communicate properly was the inspiration for the creation of Spanish SPEED SPEECH. This remarkable course enables you to consolidate thousands of regular and irregular verb endings into only twelve "MAGIC KEYS". That's right! The SPEED SPEECH "MAGIC KEYS" lets you express thousands of thoughts and ideas in Spanish with only twelve sounds and endings.

Spanish SPEED SPEECH is available only through The Daily Sikeston Standard. Since it is being offered as a public service to our readers, we are able to give you the entire $14.85 course, which includes a textbook, two 45 RPM records, and a dictionary, for only $9.12. Here is all you have to do.

1. Tear out coupons Nos. 1 through 4, as they appear daily in The Daily Sikeston Standard. Save four coupons for each item that you wish to purchase. 2. Send the coupons with the easy order blank, which will appear in The Daily Sikeston Standard several times each week. That's right, by sending the coupons, you save $5.73 if you purchase the entire course. However, you may order only the textbook if you desire. 3. Mail the order blank and a check or money order for $3.04 for each item, payable to The Daily Sikeston Standard. This exclusive offer enables you to obtain the SPEED SPEECH course, which sells for $14.85 in bookstores, for only $9.12 through this newspaper.

Stuart Symington Reports from Washington

THE SENATE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE this last week completed 10 days of intensive hearings with several hundred witnesses on the Administration's 1965 proposals for farm legislation.

Hilton Bracy, executive vice-president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, accompanied by George Shelby, president of that association, and Dick Phillips, vice-president of the Missouri State Association of Farmer Elected Committeemen, presented the MCPA recommendations.

With an expected $900 million to $1 billion cost to the Government this crop year and a growing surplus, there is unanimity among both the Senate and House Agriculture Committee members on the need for some changes in the cotton program.

Most producer witnesses and members of the Committees familiar with the cotton situation over the years seem to be in agreement that the 16 million acre minimum national acreage allotment should be continued. Reduction of the Government-stored surplus, expected to be just under 14 million bales on August 31, would come through programs for voluntary acreage diversion and increased exports.

In their 5-point program, Missouri Cotton Producers recommend authority and direction for the Secretary of Agriculture to operate an intensified export program both through competitive bid sales on the world market and barter.

Farmers throughout the State are also very much interested in legislative proposals on feed grains. Because of their importance in our livestock industry which provides nearly two thirds of our farm income, these corn and sorghum crops have the greatest impact on Missouri's total farm receipts.

The present feed grain program, adopted in 1961, has brought about a reduction in CCC stocks of feed grain from 85 million tons in 1961 to 56 million tons, lowering the costs of storage, interest and other carrying charges by $585 million under what they would have been under the old program.

Operation Head Start, announced this spring by the Office of Economic Opportunity to give eight weeks of pre-school training to children of the poor this summer, is being carried out throughout Missouri with 128 Federal grants totaling $2,141,558.

In 451 Centers across the State, 16,354 children are being helped by 2,256 workers, 1,172 professionals (teachers, doctors, dentists, psychologists, and social workers) and 881 volunteers. This is a ratio of 1 professional for every 14 children compared with the national goal of 1 for 20.

One of the part-time members of my staff, Miss Gail Rothschild, of Kansas City, a student at George Washington University, is a volunteer two days a week this summer, for the Head Start project here in Washington. She works in the dramatics program, one of the learning activities which also include music, drawing and supervised field trips among others. Gail reports many of the children in her classes have never heard a fairy tale. Through story telling and improvising plays, they are gaining a new and much broader outlook through imagination.

How to cut employment problems down to size.

When we look at America's employment challenges—the need to create more jobs and to train people for existing jobs—as one huge national problem, demanding a single, vast federally-imposed solution, the task ahead appears overwhelmingly large and complex.

But if we look at employment problems on a community by community and company by company basis—even on a person by person basis—then we cut the problem down to size, and come up with the great variety of answers needed to produce practical solutions.

That's what an industrialist in Freeland, Pennsylvania did. He was convinced that the town's unemployed coal miners could be trained for factory work. He built a plant in the area, set up a system for screening job applicants, and systematic on-the-job training. Result: former miners are now turning out quality products and earning good wages.

The National Association of Manufacturers' STEP (Solutions To Employment Problems) program has reported on this instance—and dozens of other local solutions to employment challenges—in detailed case studies which are available without charge. If you want to know more about how to cut employment problems down to size, write to STEP, National Association of Manufacturers, 277 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: When I read your column yesterday I was sure the Chicago wind must have blown your brains out. What do you mean by telling a 41-year-old woman she should be thrilled to be having a baby?

That woman has a son in college and two girls in high school. She was just beginning to enjoy life and now she has to start over with diapers, 2:00 A.M. feedings, shots, sitters, high chair, stroller — the whole bit.

I was 39 when my third son was born. I got sick and tired of having everyone tell me how happy I should be. No woman who had a child under eight opened up a mouth. It was always the ones with college kids and hysterectomies who gave me the "you're so lucky" routine.

I wasn't happy about it then and I'm not happy about it now. This boy is harder to raise than all the others put together. Whenever I take him any place people ask me my grandson's name. I am living for the day I can get this kid in school so I can get off tranquilizers and back on food. — MRS. A. WRECK

Dear Mrs.: I suspect your letter was written at the end of an exhausting day. Let's hear from you after you've had a good night's sleep — about five years from now.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a career woman who was furious because people kept asking her why she wasn't married. Finally she hit on an answer that silenced them promptly. Her reply was, "Just lucky I guess."

I am a business woman, 30, who is faced with a similar problem. I live in a fashionable, well - furnished apartment — alone. When people ask me where I live I say, "The Fountain Plaza." The next question is, "With another girl?" I reply, "No, I live alone." The eyebrows shoot up and the jaws drop — then embarrassed silence. The inference that only a kept woman or a sex maniac would live alone infuriates me.

I live alone because I like privacy. Expensive? Yes. But I'd rather not have a car, or a fur coat, or a trip to the Orient. Can you think of an answer to put these clods in their place? — SOLO AND HAPPY

Dear Solo: The next time someone asks if you have a roommate say, "No. I live alone because I like to do my housework in the nude." That should clear their sinuses.

Dear Ann Landers: My heart goes out to "Heartache in New Haven" — the mother whose handsome, bright and promising son got married and is accepting gifts and support checks from his in-laws.

When I married four years ago my parents gave us a beautiful wedding but refused to give us anything more. It was my husband's grandmother, not his parents, who stepped in and presented us with a blank check to buy furniture. She let us know there was plenty more where that came from. We thought Grandma was great and that my parents were selfish and miserly — and we said so.

We soon learned that Grandma's generosity had some intersting strings attached. Before long we discovered we had no life of our own. Grandma figured since she had been so generous we owed her our lives, and she was there to collect — every day — in one way or another.

We ended up giving everything back, and since we've been on our own we've been much happier, and closer. We appreciate my parents more than ever. They give us nothing but their wonderful company — when we want it — and we love and respect them. — D.H.D.

Dear D.H.D.: Making it on your own is one of life's great joys. Aren't you glad you didn't miss it?

No teen-ager is as confident as he appears. Get clued in. Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MISS AMERICA

There she goes--Miss America
The symbol of charm and grace,
With a cloak of hope wrapped about her,
And a confident smile on her face.

May God grant her the ability,
As she goes on her tour of good will,
To impart her sense of humility
To a world that is skeptical still.

Yet may all men know we are unafraid
To fight for the freedom we cherish;
Next year there will be another maid,
May "Miss America" never perish!

--Charlotte T. Place

Only Two Days Left To Get Speed Spanish

Only two days remain for you to take advantage of William Archer's Spanish SPEED SPEECH, now being offered by The Daily Sikeston Standard. With this amazing course, you can learn conversational Spanish with only 24 hours of concentrated study. Order your textbook, two 45 RPM records, and dictionary today, and have the satisfaction of knowing that you, too, can speak Spanish. Time is running out, so mail your order blank today.

Did you know that every word in English that ends in "ly" becomes a Spanish word merely by changing the "ly" to "mente"; for example, "finally" becomes "finalmente". Simple? In this last half minute your Spanish vocabulary has as many "ly" ending words as your English vocabulary.

William Archer was always a diligent student of Spanish, however, when he and his family moved to Mexico, he found that he could not converse with the natives. This complete inability to communicate properly was the inspiration for the creation of Spanish SPEED SPEECH. This remarkable course enables you to consolidate thousands of regular and irregular verb endings into only twelve "MAGIC KEYS". That's right! The SPEED SPEECH "MAGIC KEYS" lets you express thousands of thoughts and ideas in Spanish with only twelve sounds and endings.

Spanish SPEED SPEECH is available only through The Daily Sikeston Standard. Since it is being offered as a public service to our readers, we are able to give you the entire $14.85 course, which includes a textbook, two 45 RPM records, and a dictionary, for only $9.12. Here is all you have to do.

1. Tear out coupons Nos. 1 through 4, as they appear daily in The Daily Sikeston Standard. Save four coupons for each item that you wish to purchase. 2. Send the coupons with the easy order blank, which will appear in The Daily Sikeston Standard several times each week. That's right, by sending the coupons, you save $5.73 if you purchase the entire course. However, you may order only the textbook if you desire. 3. Mail the order blank and a check or money order for $3.04 for each item, payable to The Daily Sikeston Standard. This exclusive offer enables you to obtain the SPEED SPEECH course, which sells for $14.85 in bookstores, for only $9.12 through this newspaper.

Stuart Symington Reports from Washington

THE SENATE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE this last week completed 10 days of intensive hearings with several hundred witnesses on the Administration's 1965 proposals for farm legislation.

Hilton Bracy, executive vice-president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, accompanied by George Shelby, president of that association, and Dick Phillips, vice-president of the Missouri State Association of Farmer Elected Committeemen, presented the MCPA recommendations.

With an expected $900 million to $1 billion cost to the Government this crop year and a growing surplus, there is unanimity among both the Senate and House Agriculture Committee members on the need for some changes in the cotton program.

Most producer witnesses and members of the Committees familiar with the cotton situation over the years seem to be in agreement that the 16 million acre minimum national acreage allotment should be continued. Reduction of the Government-stored surplus, expected to be just under 14 million bales on August 31, would come through programs for voluntary acreage diversion and increased exports.

In their 5-point program, Missouri Cotton Producers recommend authority and direction for the Secretary of Agriculture to operate an intensified export program both through competitive bid sales on the world market and barter.

Farmers throughout the State are also very much interested in legislative proposals on feed grains. Because of their importance in our livestock industry which provides nearly two thirds of our farm income, these corn and sorghum crops have the greatest impact on Missouri's total farm receipts.

The present feed grain program, adopted in 1961, has brought about a reduction in CCC stocks of feed grain from 85 million tons in 1961 to 56 million tons, lowering the costs of storage, interest and other carrying charges by $585 million under what they would have been under the old program.

Operation Head Start, announced this spring by the Office of Economic Opportunity to give eight weeks of pre-school training to children of the poor this summer, is being carried out throughout Missouri with 128 Federal grants totaling $2,141,558.

In 451 Centers across the State, 16,354 children are being helped by 2,256 workers, 1,172 professionals (teachers, doctors, dentists, psychologists, and social workers) and 881 volunteers. This is a ratio of 1 professional for every 14 children compared with the national goal of 1 for 20.

One of the part-time members of my staff, Miss Gail Rothschild, of Kansas City, a student at George Washington University, is a volunteer two days a week this summer, for the Head Start project here in Washington. She works in the dramatics program, one of the learning activities which also include music, drawing and supervised field trips among others. Gail reports many of the children in her classes have never heard a fairy tale. Through story telling and improvising plays, they are gaining a new and much broader outlook through imagination.

How to cut employment problems down to size.

When we look at America's employment challenges—the need to create more jobs and to train people for existing jobs—as one huge national problem, demanding a single, vast federally-imposed solution, the task ahead appears overwhelmingly large and complex.

But if we look at employment problems on a community by community and company by company basis—even on a person by person basis—then we cut the problem down to size, and come up with the great variety of answers needed to produce practical solutions.

That's what an industrialist in Freeland, Pennsylvania did. He was convinced that the town's unemployed coal miners could be trained for factory work. He built a plant in the area, set up a system for screening job applicants, and systematic on-the-job training. Result: former miners are now turning out quality products and earning good wages.

The National Association of Manufacturers' STEP (Solutions To Employment Problems) program has reported on this instance—and dozens of other local solutions to employment challenges—in detailed case studies which are available without charge. If you want to know more about how to cut employment problems down to size, write to STEP, National Association of Manufacturers, 277 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Purchases $3 Billion

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK -- The busy airline purchasing agents are even more free-handed than earlier reports indicated.

A new survey by the Air Transport Association shows orders of new equipment should top $3 billion before the end of the year.

The airlines say this rate of capital investment exceeds that of any other major industry in the country.

Others than the planemakers getting the orders will benefit. The airlines point out that most of the new equipment will be short- and medium-range aircraft designed to serve the intermediate cities. This would answer some of the complaints that these cities have been bypassed by the big jets.

The new equipment, when all is delivered by the end of 1967, will increase available seat miles by 48 per cent.

The airlines also say that the investments and the increased productivity from the new equipment should create 50,000 new jobs by 1970. The airlines now employ about 190,000 in the air and on the ground.

The survey to be released later this week shows that as of June 30 orders totaled 480 aircraft at a purchase cost of $2.4 billion. Of these, 308 are Boeing 727, 737, Douglas DC9s and British made BAC 111 jets, designed primarily for the short-haul and medium-range markets.

The big expansion comes on top of a spurt in 1964 which found the airlines new spending equaling 23 per cent of the purchase cost of the property and equipment they had in service at the beginning of that year.

The association points out that at the end of World War II the cost of property and equipment operated by the airlines was $125 million. By the end of 1954 this had multiplied to $1.25 billion. By the end of 1964 the investment totaled $5 billion.

Finding the money to finance this growth has been a headache at times. And ahead is the supersonic age, when the planes will be priced at $25 million to $35 million each.

The airlines have gone deeply into debt at times to finance their growth. Today the ration is 60 per cent debt and 40 per cent equity. The association says the goal is to reverse this by the early 1970s. If so, they'll be in better condition to finance the expensive switch to supersonic planes.

Helping with the financing of the new rush of orders for the medium-range jets is the increased earnings of most airlines this year.

The new equipment is counted on to make the lines even more profitable in time. And that is why they have chosen to expand now rather than retrench after the four lean years of 1960 through 1963 which saw many reported losses.
